Teddy Kennedy Pleads Guilty, Judge Suspends 2-Month Jail Term

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts pleaded guilty today to a charge of leaving the scene of a fatal accident and was given a two-month suspended jail term.

Defense lawyers told the court they had "legal defenses" they could use but Kennedy insisted on pleading guilty and accepting punishment.

There was confusion initially over whether Kennedy also was to be placed on probation.

Kennedy told newsmen as he left the courthouse that he had requested network television time tonight "to explain to the people of Massachussets."

His Washington office said the report, on both radio and television would be made at 7:30 p.m. EDT.

His arraignment was in a courtroom in which the majority of spectators were some 50 newsmen. They were from all parts of the country and representing newspapers as far away as Japan. Outside the courtroom were 50 photographers and television cameramen.

Kennedy was the driver of a car that plunged off a narrow bridge and into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island last Friday night. A pretty blonde secretary from Washington drowned.

Kennedy's arraignment and disposition of the case took only about 10 minutes in the crowded second floor courtroom of the 150-year-old red brick courthouse.

When Judge James A. Boyle opened the session at 9:01 a.m., Clerk Thomas A. Teller called the Kennedy case first.

Kennedy stood at the rail as Teller read the words of the complaint, the State's charge that "Edward M. Kennedy of Boston did go away after causing injury to Miss Mary Jo Kopechne without making known your name and reigstration number."

"How do you plead, guilty or not guilty."

Kennedy replied in a low but steady voice, "Guilty."

Judge Boyle asked to hear some of the evidence and the prosecutor, Walter D. Steele, called the Edgartown Police Chief Dominick J. Arena.

Arena described how he had gone to the scene on Chappaquiddick Island, recovered the body, and that when he returned to the station, Kennedy "advised me that he was driver of the car, and that the accident happened sometime after 11:15 p.m. (Friday)."

"It was not reported to me until after 9 a.m. the next day," Arena testified.

Defense counsel Robert G. Clark Jr. and Richard J. McCarron said they had no questions.

"Well, I have," said the judge. "Was there any deliberate effort to conceal the identity of the defendant?"

"Not to my knowledge, your honor," Arena replied.

McCarron spoke up.

"Your honor, the defense attorneys have advised Mr. Kennedy there are legal defenses he could bring..."

"Just a minute," the judge broke in. "Do you now want to plead not guilty?"

"No, your honor. The defendant is adamant in that he wishes to plead guilty to this offense of operating a motor vehicle and going away from the scene of the accident and leave the disposition to this court.

"It is the attitude of both prosecution and defense counsel that confinement to jail is not necessary or proper in this case and asks suspension."

Steele then told the court that the state asked for a sentence of two months—the minimum in the two-month to two-year penalty provided by law.

Steele also recommended suspension. He said:

"Having in mind the character and the reputation of the defendant the ends of justice would not be served by a jail term."

"Considering the unblemished record of this defendant," the judge said, "he has already been and will continue to be punished far beyond anything this court can impose."

"I will impose the minimum and suspend if the defendant accepts the suspension," the judge said, looking at Kennedy.

The clerk then read out the sentence:

"This court has found you guilty of leaving the scene of an accident and orders you to be confined for a period of two months in the Barnstable House of Correction, sentence suspended."

Kennedy left the courtroom by a rear door and went to the first floor. He left by the main front entrance.

Beside him was his wife, Joan, followed by his brotiner-in-law, Stephen Smith, and a friend, John Driscoll, whose summer home is near that of the Kennedys.

"I have made my plea. I have asked for time on the television networks tonight to explain to the people of Massachusetts."

Priceless Rocks Under Houston Scrutiny

Moonmen Relax in Splendid Isolation

ABOARD USS HORNET (UPI)—Apollo 11's moon explorers relaxed in splendid isolation today and steamed toward home from their mid-Pacific splashdown—a trip that takes longer than the return from their lunar conquest. Two boxes containing 60 pounds of priceless rocks Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., picked up on their moon walk were on their way, too, and expected to beat the astronauts back to the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston by almost two days.

After undergoing the most thorough initial medical checks of any astronauts and eating meals of pancakes and sirloin steak, Armstrong, Aldrin and Michael Collins relaxed after eight days and 952,700 miles in space.

Astronauts Return

Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins returned from their epic trip at 12:50 p.m. EDT Thursday when they plopped into the Pacific Ocean.

The trip back to Houston, by the Hornet, by truck, plane and truck again will take about 65 hours.

They were greeted by President Nixon, but even he had to see them through the trailer window. When the astronauts get back to Houston they will trade the trailer for a place in a special $11-million quarantine building where they must stay until Aug. 11. They will share that building with the rocks.

"There are no significant physical abnormalities," said Dr. Clarence A. Jernigan after the initial medical checks.

Dr. William Carpentier, who will spend the next 17 days in quarantine with the moon pilots, said none showed any signs of having picked up any alien diseases. That chance is admittedly small, but the space agency is taking no chances.

Carpentier said the first tests showed Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins experienced less strain on their hearts and blood vessels than some several previous space travelers have.

Related stories on page 7.

In Houston, Dr. George E. Mueller, director of manned spaceflight, said the eight-day mission of Apollo 11 put the nation "at what is undoubtedly the greatest decision point in the history of this planet."

"Mars is almost certainly the next goal," he added.

President Nixon told the astronauts "as a result of what you've done, the world had never been closer together before, and we just thank you for that."

Apollo Hoisted Aboard

Their trusty Apollo spacecraft was hoisted aboard the carrier about two hours after the three spacemen entered the isolation trailer.

Dr. Thomas O. Paine, head of the space agency, who accompanied the moon specimens back to Houston, said it "looks great, a little better than Apollo 10—about as good as Apollo 8."

Despite the isolation, the quarantine trailer was plush compared to the Hornet. Most important, it was air conditioned. It also has a carpet, the telephone circuits over which the astronauts talked with their wives and deep soft mattresses on the bunk beds.

Meanwhile, the sixty pounds of the moon arrived at Houston under elaborate security wraps today for the start of one of history's greatest scientific investigations.

Scientists gathered from around the world for the arrival of two planes at nearby Ellington Air Force Base with the rock and dirt samples Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin picked up on the moon.

It is indicative of how highly prized the rock samples are that they are being sent in two planes. Space agency officials explain in case something happens to one of the aircraft there will still be another load.

Tight Security Planned

Tighest security was planned for the rock's arrival.

Scientists believe the rocks might help answer questions about the origin of the moon and the earth, the constitution of the solar system and the matter which makes up the universe.

The rocks were left in the Apollo 11 Columbia command module when Armstrong, Aldrin and Michael Collins splashed down in the Pacific Thursday. Once the module was aboard the carrier Hornet, the samples were loaded on the aircraft and started on their journey to the LRL, an $11-million building here where the astronauts will also spend their 18-day quarantine.

The rocks will first be tested to determine if any alien substances in or on them can harm man. Because of this, all testing of the samples will be done in the LRL and a 50-day quarantine was imposed on the specimens.

White mice, minnows and plants raised in germ-free environments will be exposed to the rocks. If anything happens to the organisms, it may be an indication harmful substances are contained in the rocks.

Once scientists feel sure there is no danger, the rocks will be sliced into thin layers at the LRL. Parts of the samples will be ground up and sent to 142 of the world's top scientists who will conduct tests in their own special fields.

The rocks, however, are considered U.S. government property and although they are loaned to the scientists they must be returned to the space agency when the tests are completed.

A conference on the lunar materials is being planned so scientists can report their findings on the moon matter. No date has been set.

Nixon Would Welcome Summit

By MERRIMAN SMITH

AGANA, Guam (UPI)—President Nixon said today he was seeking to develop a new Asian policy to avoid future Vietnams and said he was ready to meet the Russians at the summit if it would help end the present conflict.

He said he would make a definite decision sometime next month about further troop withdrawals from Vietnam, but he would not announce any new withdrawals during the swing through Asia which he will start Saturday.

The President spoke shortly after his arrival on Guam for a rest after witnessing the splashdown and recovery of the Apollo 11 astronauts aboard the aircraft carrier USS Hornet.

At a lengthy briefing for newsmen, but without permitting direct quotes, the President made these points:

—He seeks a new policy in Asia that would avoid creeping involvement of the sort which led the United States into the Vietnam War.

—His main purpose in visiting Southeast Asia's countries is to discuss a revised relationship whereby the United States would assist but not dictate.

—A new policy above all would not permit use of U.S. military personnel to become involved in actions which should be the primary responsibility of the individual countries.

—A summit meeting with Moscow leaders would be justified and he would welcome it if it could help end the Vietnam War.

The objective, he said, would be to avoid another war like the one in Vietnam anywhere in the world. He said the United States must learn by past mistakes.

The President said he was convinced Asia poses the greatest threat to world peace from now until the end of the century. But this, he said, does not minimize the dangers elsewhere in the world, such as in the Middle East.

Nixon also spoke of the increasing belligerence of Communist China and North Vietnam.

Nixon was spending the night on this American outpost in the far Pacific before starting on the seven-nation swing to the Philippines, Indonesia, Thailand, India, Pakistan, Communist Romania and a brief stop off in England en route home Aug. 3.

The President came to Guam and a cheerful welcome from an officially estimated 9,000 people at the airport after flying from the Apollo recovery carrier USS Hornet by way of Johnston Island.

He landed on Guam at 4:23 p.m.—1:23 a.m. EDT Friday—and was joined a few minutes later by his wife Pat, who flew in directly from Honolulu to join him for the trip.

After welcoming ceremonies, the President in a talk with newsmen posed several other possibilities for holding a summit meeting with the Soviet leaders:

—If such a conference could produce progess toward a more stable peace position in the Middle East.

—If the Russians were willing to discuss realistic controls of strategic arms.

It was a highly unusual meeting between the Chief Executive and reporters lasting for approximately one hour. Newsmen were not permitted to quote him directly, but they were allowed to use his remarks in the third person.

Nixon said the primary thrust of his trip would be to develop an area of greater understanding as to the future of America's role in Asia after settlement of the Vietnamese conflict.

Splashdown Witnessed by Shoppers

Some 50 persons gathered around a battery of TV sets at Sears Thursday afternoon as Apollo 11 and her moon-touring crew returned to earth. The crowd began gathering about 10 minutes before splashdown and many remained until the capsule was aboard the carrier USS Hornet. Youngsters, who may be visiting the moon themselves in future years, grabbed the best seats early. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Deny Wittenberg Park To Woodstock Hippies

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

WOODSTOCK

"SOMEWHERE TO GO . . . SPACE."

But the space Woodstock's Chamber of Commerce had in mind — the proposed but slow-in-coming Wittenberg State Park — will definitely not be the "somewhere to go" that's needed.

Chamber board of directors had hit upon the idea of using a portion of the planned-for-the-future park in an effort to solve the problems Woodstock has been encountering because of the "hippie movement" and the impact it has made on the art colony as a community.

Evaluating everything that had been said at its standing room only public meeting in late June on the topic of hippies, C of C directors decided to "shelve" all concerns save one; give immediate attention to finding a place where the current large influx of outsiders could settle in beyond town and off the village streets.

What better place than Wittenberg, decided Chamber directors. Geographically a part of Woodstock, it is easily accessible from the village via good roads; is woodsy enough to provide campsites. Better still, a large portion of its acreage has already been set aside for a State Park. But since it might be innumerable years before the park becomes a reality, why not try to obtain access to some of the land in the interval for use by the Town of Woodstock to alleviate the current congestion in the village?

It sounded as feasible as the loitering ordinance, the curfew, the law and order crackdown and the meditation center-and-hostel that had been suggested by others. Accordingly, Chamber directors voted to have C of C President Christopher Morris contact the proper authorities in an attempt to get a "chunk of the planned parkland in Wittenberg. By doing so "minimal sanitary" work there and placing directional signs to the campsite, directors were sure hippies and rucksackers could be lured out of the village and off its streets.

Morris was scheduled to report the results of his inquiries to a general membership meeting of the Chamber Thursday night at Deanie's. He was unable to attend, but The Freeman has verified through him that he would have been forced to report his mission was unsuccessful.

Not only did state authorities say they would not give Woodstock permission to use parkland in Wittenberg, but they confirmed that they could not do so legally. Since the legislature has been slow to vote funds for the Wittenberg project, the park—which will be named after former Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson — will probably not figure in Woodstock's plans to solve its hippie

19,000 RESPONSES — Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (L) looks over responses to questionnaires mailed to 28th Congressional District residents which will be sent Capitol Computer Research for analysis and tabulation. Pictured with Rep. Fish is receptionist Cathy Henler, seated, and Peter Thiel and Sally Frazer, summer interns in his Washington office. Fish said he feels the only way he can get an accurate consensus of opinion of residents of the district on the 20 subjects covered in the questionnaire is to have them tabulated by an unbiased data processing organization.

Bear Roams Village Streets

ELLENVILLE — Apparently oblivious to the unwritten law that bears belong in the woods and not on village streets, a 250 pound black bear, described by Ellenville village police about no larger than a cub, caused a slight commotion here early Thursday.

Ellenville Police received a report from Virgil Quick of Maple Ave. that a small black bear was wandering through a clump of trees on the Gable property around 6:45 p.m.

Ellenville police, armed with shotguns in replace of trusty flintlocks, rushed to the area and tried to surround and subdue the animal. But the bruin apparently wanted nothing to do with civilization. He nonchalantly ambled through the ring of deputies and disappeared in the vicinity of nearby Spring Street.

There has been no trace of the bear since then. Officers told The Freeman this morning that the bear apparantly got separated from its mother and was trying to find its way back home.

When asked if the bear seemed friendly an Ellenville deputy replied, "Not really, we would have shot it if we had to." He added, "I hope it finds its way back to his mother."

Ellenville Police officers have spotted quite a few deer in the village but, as far as they can remember, they've never seen any bears.

Many people in Ellenville like to pride themselves on their hospitality, but there's one bear cub wandering through the woods of southern Ulster County today who can do without civilization and its "hospitality."

Officers John Phillips, C. Freer and R. Baker investigated the incident.

Napanoch Woe--Source

ELLENVILLE — While acknowledging that the completion of the Napanoch Water and Sewer project will be somewhat delayed, Wawarsing Town Supervisor Frank Harkin announced this week that the planning for the project "is proceeding satisfactorily."

Supervisor Harkin explained that the field work and mapping for the water system was proceeding on schedule, but that "we are experiencing a problem in locating a suitable site for the water source."

He noted that different sites had been tested and that in each case subsurface exploration showed no available water source.

"Therefore we have been forced to abandon both these possibilities," Harkin said. "We do have other possible sites lined up, but these require additional time to schedule for the necessary drilling work."

In order to facilitate this additional work, Harkin had requested that the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which is subsidizing the project, grant the Town of Wawarsing an extention of three months.

In his statement on Wednesday, Harkin announced that this extension time was granted and that the new deadline for planning completion was for October 9, 1969.

"I hope that this will serve to keep the people of Napanoch informed relative to this most important project," Harkin said.

Two Are Cited In Greene Crash

CATSKILL — Two motorists were cited for vehicle and traffic violations Thursday night after their cars collided on Old Route 23 at Jefferson Heights.

James D. Berger, 20 of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was driving his car along the highway and attempted a left turn into a private driveway, when it was in collision with a vehicle operated by Victor E. Way, 29, of 24 River Street, Catskill.

Berger was treated at Greene County Memorial Hospital for a sprained right knee. He was summoned by Trooper R. H. Hussey for failure to yield the right of way. Way was ticketed for operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

Dissension On Rhinebeck Rate

RHINEBECK — The State Board of Equalization recently set the Rhinebeck equalization rate down from 100 to 98, causing one prominent Democrat to give voice to dissension.

Paul Gmiener, town Democratic chairman, castigated Town Supervisor Rowland Sharpe for his "indifference and negligence" in not protesting the change.

Gmiener contends that the reduction in the equalization rate would represent an increase in the proposed school tax rate. Also, a larger proportion of county taxes will be taken from Rhinebeck starting in 1970 because of the change.

He said, 'Rhinebeck taxpayers ought to be told that this deteriorating situation might have been prevented if we had an alert and vigorous supervisor. The State Board of Equalization tentatively set the rate two months ago. Supervisor Sharpe was then legally entitled to an official hearing for appeal. But Supervisor Sharpe did nothing. Other town supervisors, both this year and in the past, have successfully appealed the tentative equalization rate, and many have been able to get their original rate restored or, at least raised."

Gmiener feels that this has succeeded in driving the tax rate up in Rhinebeck. He also stated that Sharpe has said that a supervisor should spend at least four hours a day in the town office, but "what's the use of instant availability unless the supervisor knows what to do and does it? Sitting at a desk is not what Rhinebeck needs."

All-State Alarm For Missing Girl

By WALTER S. CLARK

ROSENDALE

An all-state alarm has been sent out by Kingston State Police calling upon all police agencies to be on the lookout for a station wagon in which 17-year-old Gloria Sagar of Binnewater was last seen before she vanished on Tuesday.

The girl and her sister, Frances Ann, had announced their engagements on May 31, and they planned to marry their fiances in October.

Senior BCI Investigator Edward Shannon of the Kingston State Police said today that investigation up to now has not indicated any evidence that "there is a violation of the law" in the disappearance of the girl.

Correction on License

A correction has been announced in the registration number of the tan station wagon Gloria was last seen riding in along Albany Avenue. Shannon said the correct number of the vehicle is 2083-UL and not UL-8174 as previously reported. Relatives and friends in up state New York and Keene, N. H., have been interviewed along with many area residents, as authorities sought bits of evidence that might lead to the whereabouts of the missing girl and the car which belongs to her father, George A. Sagar, of R.D. 4, Box 269, Kingston.

Authorities are checking the possibility the girl may be in company of another person, it was learned.

Sagar said that when Gloria left home Tuesday morning with her sister, Frances, to go to Kingston, she had less than $5 with her and she didn't take any extra clothing or other personal items that might indicate she planned to go away. Sagar said Gloria did go to the Grand Union Market on Albany Avenue for an interview for a job. "That is the last time we know she was seen in the car," Sagar said.

On May 31, Gloria announced her betrothal to Gary F. Augustine of Columbia Heights, Brooklyn. On that day the girl's sister, Frances, announced her engagement to Lucas Stoutenburg of Woodstock.

Augustine was notified on Tuesday that Gloria had disappeared and he went to Binnewater to talk with the Sagar family. He had no idea of where the girl might be, Sagar said.

Always Informed

Sagar also noted that Gloria had never stayed away from home without informing her parents where she was going.

In an article published in The Freeman about Gloria's engagement, it was noted that she planned to devote full time to preaching God's Kingdom as one of Jehovah's Witnesses. The girl's fiance is a member of Bethal Family at Headquarters Staff of Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of Jehovah Witnesses in New York City.

Sagar said the family is hopeful that Gloria will be located soon. "We haven't heard from her since she left home on Tuesday," he said.

Ray More Enthused After Uptown Talks

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

An architect for a large Town of Ulster department store, interested in a new location on the site of the old Montgomery Ward store in uptown Kingston, met with Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan and urban renewal officials Wednesday to explore the possibility of a combination store-parking structure.

Has Cash for '70 Work

The talk left the mayor with what he termed more "enthusiasm" about the uptown urban renewal project than ever before. He said the store is "interested in and has the cash to built in 1970 and open in 1971."

Garraghan also sees the architect's concept as a possible answer to the parking needs of uptown Kingston. Urban Renewal officials originally interested in building a parking structure on the site put the plan aside when bids submitted were prohibitive in cost.

The department store designer-developer said he could perhaps envision a three-level department store, with escalators, set back from North Front Street, between it and the Plaza Road. Parking would be afforded in a huge area facing North Front Street and under and around the building frontinng Plaza Road. The lot between North Front and Plaza Road is 540-feet deep.

The building would be set up on a two-level steel parking structure to be built by urban renewal and would have access to the Plaza Road at ground level as well as to North Front Street at its ground level.

Garraghan suggested that the "unsightly side" of adjoining buildings on North Front Street would have to be remedied.

'Free' Parking Stressed

The mayor said that the architect stressed the importance of "free" parking for uptown store patrons. Garraghan agreed saying he would be willing to take out all the uptown parking meters north of John Street and impose heavy fines on merchants who take advantage of all-day parking on the streets.

Garraghan also said that the architect felt the small shops on North Front Street, such as antique and gun shops, are an asset to the business community and are a drawing card to the shopping area.

After touring the entire uptown Urban Renewal section of the city, the architect and the local officials agreed to go back to their respective drawing boards and see what further developments and ideas may emerge before making any decisive moves.

Meanwhile, the mayor and urban renewal have undertaken the clearing of some of the land behind the North Front Street stores, removing brush and debris in order that the area may be used temporarily as a parking lot for anyone shopping in the uptown area. Work on the Project has been in progress during the past week.

Drowned Girl Under LSD

Warrant Out for Leary

HEMET, Calif. (UPI)—A warrant for the arrest of Timothy Leary was out today after an autopsy showed that a 17-year-old girl who drowned at his ranch was under the influence of LSD.

Narcotics investigators raided Leary's mountain center ranch near here Thursday and arrested five persons for possession of marijuana.

Later in the day, a warrant was issued in Riverside Municipal Court for his arrest on suspicion of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The victim, Charlene Renee Almeida, 17, of Laguna Beach, Calif., was swimming in the nude in a 30-foot-deep pond on the ranch when she drowned July 14. She had lived in the commune for 10 days.

The population at the ranch ranges from several hundred persons on the weekends to a handful at other times. Most of the permanent residents live in Indian tepees.

Leary, a former Harvard instructor whose pioneer experiemnts with the effects of LSD led to his leaving the university, recently won a reversal by the U.S. Supreme Court of a federal narcotics conviction.

However, Leary, 49, his wife, Rosemary, 33, and son, John, 19, have been indicted by the Orange County Grand Jury on marijuana possession charges. His trial is set for Sept. 3.

Stately Elm Beetle Prey

SYRACUSE

The stately elm tree, long famous for its beauty and cooling shade often falls victim to the elm leaf beetle, one of the most destructive pests in New York State of all species of elm. This insect does not spread the fungus that causes Dutch elm disease, however. Damage to the elm tree through repeated leaf losses weakens the tree and lowers its resistance to disease and attacks by other insects. The elm leaf beetle skeletonizes the leaves of the tree causing them to turn brown, wither, and drop. In some localities a second leafing in the summer is often attacked by a second generation of beetles.

The State University College of Forestry at Syracuse University has prepared a leaflet titled, "Elm Leaf Beetle," describing the destructive habits of this insect. Recommended control measures to protect the elm are included in the publication.

Efforts by individual homeowners, however, to combat the elm beetle usually prove less effective and more expensive than joint efforts by groups of neighbors spraying at the same time. Sprays applied in late May and early June are most effective in the general latitude of New York State.

The adult beetles emerge in May from various protected locations including house attics, barns, and unused chimneys where they have spent the winter safe from their natural enemies. The female beetle lays a large number of eggs—from 400 to 800—which hatch in about a week.

For a free copy of, "Elm Leaf Beetle," send a post card to: Publications, State University College of Forestry, Syracuse, New York 13210. This publication is another in a series of tree pest leaflets prepared at the college.

Trees for Clean Air

Trees are important factors in keeping air clean, Robert A. Bartlett, president of The F. A. Bartlett Tree Expert Company, said today.

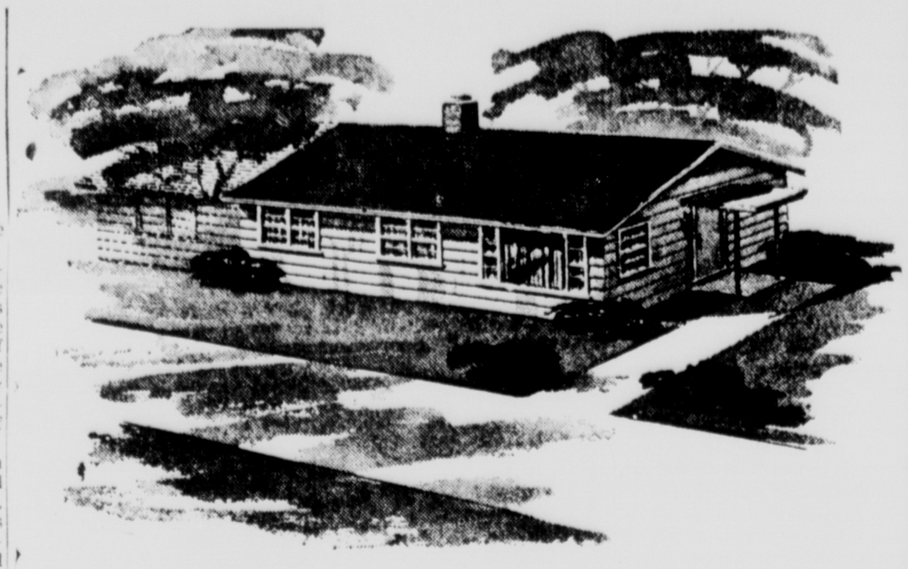

The respiratory activity of trees helps remove carbon dioxide, emitted by vehicles and other sources, from the air and liberates oxygen for man and animals, he said.

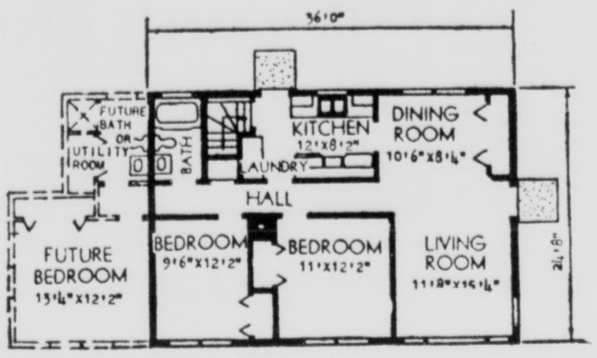

"Trees alone can't purify our air. However, the more trees and shrubs there are, the more carbon dioxide can be absorbed and oxygen returned to reduce pollution."

Mr. Bartlett pointed out various ways trees can improve environment.

"Trees can be used to screen out fumes from industrial areas," he said. "In low-lying areas, pine trees can be planted to dissipate fog that may blanket highways. Trees also serve as natural climate controls. In the summer, they help lower temperatures; and in the winter, they reduce wind velocity."

Trees set off private homes, line streets and parks, and enhance industrial sites, Mr. Bartlett said. "As living space diminishes with expanding population, each year finds greater need for more trees in urban and suburban environments. There are many good reasons for planting trees—not the least of which is beauty."

Expandable Ranch

By JACK McELENEY

The major test of a small home design is its adaptability to future expansion. If it can be readily enlarged to meet growing needs without major structural changes, then such a plan is well worth the consideration of a young family who in the future would need a larger dwelling to fit the need of additional children.

Today's design is of this nature, a modern suburban ranch type home that has already proven to be a good sound real estate investment due to the future potential of enlargement. The basic idea was to create a compact economical two bedroom house with a functional floor plan laid out to allow expansion without any interference with the original design.

The future addition would provide the third bedroom and a second bath, or two additional bedrooms, or one additional bedroom and a family room. Orientation is also no problem. The design would ideally suit a narrow lot or a corner lot and an excellent set-up is provided for a carport which could double as a covered patio.

Plans contain sectional views for building with wood, brick veneer or concrete block. Also are details for construction with basement, without basement and with a slab foundation. These factors are outlined on the blueprints.

"The Dayville" contains 889 square feet of living space.

Plans are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon.

The Green Thumb

CHECK FOR LEAF MINERS! Home gardeners who try to raise birch trees and other ornamentals are irked by the leaf miner pest. It not only attacks birch, but flowering plants such as chrysanthemums, snapdragons and columbines. They damage the plants by eating the tissue between the upper and lower surfaces of the leaves. Damage is done by the maggot (larva of a small fly) which feeds on the green parts, leaving serpentine, winding trails, or large white blotches which eventually turn brown. Leaves are weakened and the miners serve as points where disease and decay may start.

CONTROL: For the home gardener who wants to protect birch trees, the simplest way to check the miner is to apply a systemic material, one applied to the soil. This is taken up by the plant and carried into the sapsteram. As soon as an insect gets a taste of the chemical it's quickly killed. One advantage to using systemics is that there is no chance to endanger the life of birds or animals, as happens when plants are sprayed.

SUNFLOWERS ARE EASY! Right now about all the care sunflowers need is plenty of moisture and hot weather. When the temperature rises, the heads are apt to droop, but this is nothing serious. Upon watering, the heads will freshen right up. Sunflowers have few if any insects or diseases to trouble them. Sometimes aphids (plant lice) will be troublesome, but if you spray with malathion or nicotine sulfate, you won't have any trouble. The big problem is mildew or rotting of the seed. Prevent this by picking the heads when seeds first start to ripen (just before they start to shed) and hang them upside down in any dry place. Better still, dry them off quickly by placing heads in front of an electric fan to drive off the moisture.

FREE: Want to know more about sunflowers, and how to use the seeds! Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my bulletin, ALL ABOUT SUNFLOWERS. It tells how to prepare pumpkin dishes, sunflower seed recipes that will make your mouth water.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "Please tell us if we should buy hybrid angle worms to put in our garden. We used an insecticide last year and I'm afraid they were all killed off."

Answer: I doubt if the insecticide completely eliminated the worms. I wouldn't spend money buying hybrid earthworms, because so far as I know there isn't any such thing. The kind of worms in your soil now are good enough and if you add compost, clippings, you'll have all the earthworms you need.

Bathroom Banshees? Change the Shower

Does an eerie scream rent the air at your house at unexpected times? If so, startled guests may think you're harboring a banshee, but you know better. The sound is human—coming from someone who's taking a shower that suddenly went icy cold or scalding hot.

If this ever occurs at your house, you can correct it easily, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. What you need is an automatically controlled mixing valve.

According to Howard Griesbach of Powers Regulator Co., a firm that helped pioneer all types of shower and bath controls, a mixing valve is available that regulates the temperature of the water. You preset the temperature before turning it on. The water then remains at that temperature regardless of sudden changes in water pressure, since the valve compensates for them. There are no more sudden rushes of cold or hot water.

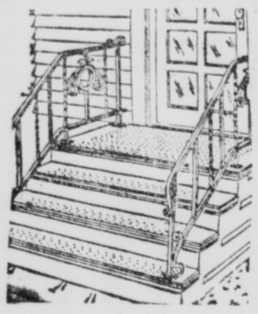

If you're getting a trickle from your shower instead of a spray, you may need a new showerhead too. The new models have a range of adjustments from a fine needle spray to a drenching stream. Another adjustment enables the bather to concentrate the flow of water directly on himself. This means less splattering and substantial saving in water use.

Your qualified plumbing contractor carries a wide range of showerheads, mixing valves and other accessories for the bathroom. He'll be glad to advise you on your neds.

NO MORE — Senator Eugene McCarthy presents a serious look as he tells newsmen Thursday that he would not run for reelection as Senator in Minnesota or any other state. "I'm reaffirming what I said in the past so that potential candidates may declare what they want to do in the next few months," the senator said. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Humphrey to Seek McCarthy's Seat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hubert H. Humphrey will seek the Senate seat Eugene J. McCarthy has decided to vacate next year, political aides of the former vice president said today.

Humphrey's return to the Senate as a Democrat from Minnesota would give him the forum he is thought to need to go after his party's presidential nomination again in 1972.

Chances that the 1968 Democratic standard bearer would get a second shot at the White House may have been enhanced last weekend when a car driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy plunged off a wooden bridge. The accident killed a 28-year-old woman passenger and could put the Massachusetts senator's political future in jeopardy.

On European Tour

Humphrey was in Yugoslavia near the end of a European tour, including a visit to Russia, and was not available for comment. His office said he would return to Washington Sunday.

But his political confidants, who declined to be named, said there was no doubt he would run for the Senate after McCarthy announced Thursday in Minneapolis that he would not seek a third term. They also brushed off Humphrey's own estimate that in 1972 he would be too old at 61 to make another bid for the presidency.

McCarthy's decision to retire from the Senate was met with formal expressions of regret and prompted speculation that the lone-wolf senator might be considering entry into the 1972 presidential race as an independent.

The 1968 contender for the Democratic pomination hinted at it when he said "there may be a political future for me" and persons close to him declined to rule out that possibility.

Also Sought Nomination

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., who also sought the Democratic nomination last year and is regarded as a possible 1972 presidential candidate, said McCarthy is "still a national figure. I wouldn't rule that out. He's got a lot of friends around the country."

McCarthy, like McGovern, built his 1968 campaign around an antiwar platform and McCarthy refused to endorse Humphrey's candidacy until very late in the race. Many members of the Democratic-Farmer-Labor Coalition in Minnesota were angered by McCarthy's late endorsement of Humphrey and some strong Humphrey supporters had been urging him for some time to challenge McCarthy.

In announcing his decision not to seek another term, McCarthy said he was declaring his intentions "at the request of local politicians and potential candidates."

Upstate Probe--Book Still Open

TROY, N.Y. (UPI)—The State Investigation Commission left the city of Troy today, urging local officials to correct conditions so deteriorated that "the democratic processes have been subverted by political domination and control."

The SIC said it has not closed its books on the tangled operations of politics and government in Troy and Rensselaer County. It has completed six days of hearings that produced allegations of kickbacks, political tempering with tax assessments and the awarding of contracts based on contributions to the Republican party.

SIC Chairman Paul J. Curran said the "investigation is continuing" and that, at a future date, testimony might be heard from witnesses who were not asked to appear in the last two weeks because of their involvment in legal action in the case.

Rensselaer County Dist. Atty. Con G. Cholakis, a Republican, is the only person who can bring legal action in any possible crimes revealed in the SIC testimony. Cholakis said he would have no statement until he had a chance to discuss the findings with commission members.

Five-Page Statement

At the conclusion of the hearings Thursday, Curran read a strongly worded five-page statement prepared by the commission.

"The evidence (in the hearings) has confirmed conclusively that the government of the City of Troy has been run mainly by political mandate rather than by the independent judgment of the people's representatives who are duly elected public officials," the SIC said. "The Republican County chairman (Joseph F. Casey) has, in effect confirmed this."

"The evidence has pointed up plainly the deficiencies, mismanagement, waste and abuses in the governmental operations of Troy," the commission said. "The time has come to reverse the procedure in Troy...the time has come to return the government of the city to duly elected men and women, who, in line with their oath of office, will govern for the benefit of all the people of the city."

Casey Main Target

Casey was the main target of the commission's criticism.

The SIC said Casey played a major role in the city's decision to switch to a private garbage collecting firm. While this was partially motivated by saving the city money, "one of the other contemplated benefits of this new arrangement would create a political honey-pot."

The statement said Casey, in his testimony, made "a number of serious admissions which should not be overlooked, including the reversal of some sworn testimony previously given by him at earlier private hearings."

The commission statement reviewed testimony from other witnesses, mainly former City Manager Sidney Smith, making major allegations against Casey. While on the stand Wednesday Casey denied these charges, and labeled Smith a "liar."

"Political influence appeared to play a dominant role in the lowering and raising of real estate tax assessments," the commission said.

Abundantly Plain

The SIC noted the "cost of getting business" from the city or county was generally a contribution of 10 per cent of the contract to the party. This added cost was "inevitably passed on to the taxpayers," the commission said.

The testimony made it "abundantly plain — in fact uncontradicted" that in the city of Troy there was no line drawn "between governmental operations and partisan political considerations," the commission said.

"This is not good government," the SIC said.

Rockland Hospital Report Criticized by Commissioner

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A grand jury report on the Rockland State Hospital depicting the mental institution as rife with prostitution and drug use was criticized today by the state commissioner of mental hygiene.

Dr. Alan D. Miller said the the report released Tuesday in Orangeburg contained "many vague, undocumented, unsubstantiated charges which distort the true picture of the hospital." He said that since the report, indicated no one, action could not be taken.

Many of the measures recommended in the report would interfere with the privacy of employes who live on the hospital grounds, Miller said. "We respect the personal privacy of these employes and do not believe we have any right to monitor their visitors nor inspect their quarters."

Miller said in a prepared release that parts of the report which called for stricter control over the movement of patients and visitors would hinder patients' recovery. "The therapuitic value of . . . freedom greatly outweighs any inconveniences to others caused by a patient occasionally wandering off the grounds. Such incidents are most infrequent," he said.

Miller defended the hospital administration, saying that the Rockland director is an experienced administrator as well as a psychiatrist. The report had indicated that the director had not been adequately trained in administration.

The commissioner's comments came a day after the head of the Civil Service Employes Association said the grand jury report did a disservice to employes of the hospital.

"The grand jury's findings, or at least press reports of them, use a scatter-gun technique that hits everything in sight and attributes everything wrong to poor administration by the local director," CSEA President Theodore C. Wenzl maintained.

Wenzl said CSEA resented the implication that all employes at the hospital are immoral and untrustworthy. "The root of the problem is simple economics," he said, claiming the hospital is inadequately staffed and that some employes must hold additional jobs to supplement their incomes.

Nary a Fig Leaf

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — Some 250 nudists from across the East stripped down for a convention under the hot July sun and ran into a familiar problem—three peeping toms in underpants.

"That was the giveaway. Everybody else was naked," said Jim Hadley, manager of the Cypress Cove nudist resort.

Hadley and his big German shepherd dog convinced the teen-aged boys, who waded around the end of an eight-foot fence to join lake swimmers, to stand still Thursday until a deputy sheriff arrived.

Then conventioneers of the American Sunbathing Association's eastern division, representing 36 camps, got back to business under the sun in preparation for the national meeting next month at Granger, Ind.

Selection of a nudist king and queen will dominate interest on Sunday, final day of the convention.

"That's the main attraction. It's more or less based on beauty and popularity," Hadley said.

Contestants wearing nary a fig leaf will walk the length of a platform. Other nudists in the audience will make known their favorites by applauding.

"Usually," Hadley explained, "the most attractive woman gets the most applause."

Playing within a seven-acre compound almost surrounded by a high, sheet metal fence, the tanned sun worshippers also plan to compete in tennis, volleyball, shuffleboard, ping pong and billiards.

A nudist for 20 years, Hadley said he has watched the average age of nudists grow younger and the pastime gain popularity with families. He said they come from all walks of life.

Anti-noise. Anti-boil. Anti-antifreeze.

Water-cooled engines are quieter than air-cooled engines (Anti-noise). But in the ordinary water-cooled engine the water and anti-freeze frequently overflow. The Renault 10 has an expansion tank which prevents overflow (Anti-boil). So you won't have to add anything (Anti-antifreeze). However, we do recommend that you check it every 18 months.

Another good point is that water heats more evenly than air, which enables the water-cooled engine to operate more efficiently. And when an engine operates efficiently, it burns less gas. (The Renault 10 gets an honest 35 m.p.h.)

'One Giant Leap'

Almost as astounding as the achievement itself is the rapidity with which it has been accepted.

All the doubts, the uncertainties, the fears that preceded the epochal moment, shared by hundreds of millions here on earth almost as firsthand experience, are eclipsed by the fact. Man has set foot on another world.

Space has not yet been conquered. But it will be, although the conquest is sure to be long, hesitating at times, filled with new doubts, uncertainties, fear and disappointments. We all know it now as certainly as do the men of Apollo 11.

Never before has so much of humanity been aware simultaneously of a turning point in the human story. Behind us lies the earthbound past, the long milleniums of man's struggle up from primeval darkness. Ahead lies a future in the stars as yet only dimly perceived but, we are now certain, inevitable.

Prometheus bound has become Prometheus unbound.

It is indeed "a giant leap for all mankind," not only for the billions who inhabit earth today but for all the untold generations which have gone before. It is a link in the unbroken—and, we may hope, unbreakable—chain of human progress.

Cave dwellers who first turned stones into tools have contributed as surely as have the two men who have walked on the moon, the thousands who have participated in the Apollo program, the many more of different times and lands who have added bit by seemingly unrelated bit to theory and technology that have released man from earth.

The conquest of space truly transcends time and the divisions of man. It is as if all of human history has been preparation, a gathering of strength and knowledge and a focusing of purpose toward this moment. The men who first walked on the moon happen to be American. But that is only because the organization that has shaped all that has gone before into successful achievement of the goal has been an awesome and indisputably American contribution.

Not the least of the achievements of Apollo 11 is the sense of unity it imparted to men on earth, not only among Americans but people of all lands who shared in the drama and saw it for what it is, a triumph for all men. If only a portion of this sense of community and interest can be retained, the moon program will be well worth the immense cost and effort.

Already attention shifts to what is to come. This November, Apollo 12 will land in the Oceanus Procellarum, the relatively smooth area that covers much of the moon's western face. Apollo 13 and 14 are targeted for rougher areas, first looks at the moon's tortured highlands.

Step by small but increasingly confident step, the exploration of the lunar surface will continue until Apollo 20, the last mission now definitely scheduled, sets down in the deep crater of Copernicus in July 1972. By then, a new course to the planets will have been charted.

Neil Armstrong's "one small step for man" will have become a conquering stride.

Women Drivers

It is an unchallengeable fact that men are better drivers than women. But . . .

Police in Sarnia, Ontario, Canada, decided last May to present awards for courteous driving each week in an effort to encourage safe driving practices on the city's streets. Traffic injuries in Sarnia in April had doubled over the same month in 1968.

Things that were looked for in the way of good vehicular deportment included signaling intention to turn, yielding the right of way to pedestrians and slowing down for school areas or construction work.

It took a "disgusting" two weeks, reports the Ontario Department of Transport, to find the first courteous driver—a woman. The next two prize-winners were also women. In one case, police followed 16 male motorists before coming upon a courteous driver—a woman.

The only male to qualify for an award was—you'd never guess—a 19-year-old motorcyclist.

The nation needs 600,000 new business and management opportunities for blacks to close the gap in the free enterprise system, according to Small Business Administrator Hilary Sandoval. It can be done in 5 to 10 years, he thinks. That would speed black capitalism faster than white capitalism ever moved before.

An experimental letter telegram service called "mailgram" is being tested for the next six months by the Post Office Department and Western Union. It is designed to provide overnight delivery of written messages, dispatched by telegram and delivered by mailmen. Somebody is thinking of overnight letter delivery.

WASHINGTON — The tremendous enthusiasm which the American people and other nations have displayed about the successful journey of Apollo 11 to the moon has come as a bit of a surprise to the politicans here. Many of them had thought that spending the money for such a project was a waste and an unpopular thing to do.

Now, from the President on down, the trend of comment indicates a belief that space exploration should continue until man sets foot on Mars or some other planet of our solar system. At the White House on Tuesday, Mr. Nixon told a group of students from 60 countries he believes that "in the year 2000 we will on this earth, have visited new worlds where there will be a form of life."

As for the funds needed for space exploration, the average expenditure per year during the last decade was about 5 billion dollars. Relatively speaking Americans during the same period spent on the average more than 12 billion a year for alcoholic beverages and nearly 8 billion annually for tobacco.

Basically, of course, there is a desire on the part of scientists to find out more about the planetary bodies of outer space. Until recent years, any suggestions that a trip be planned for astronauts to go to Mars would have been brushed aside as impossible projects. Such ideas were considered to be in the realm of "science fiction."

Nothing, however, seems impossible for the future since two Americans have walked on the surface on the moon. People have always wondered whether there is life on other planets and speculated on whether such life is as good as if not better than ours. The theory that life does exist elsewhere has been advanced from time to time by many scientists who have insisted that there is no logical reason why the earth alone should support life in any form.

The effect of the successful venture to the moon has been somewhat surprising in the depth of interest shown all over the world. Certainly if scientists come forward with some definite reasons why benefits will be derived from a greater knowledge of outer space and even from trips to other planets, Congress will be inclined to take a chance, just as it did with the moon program.

Conditions of gravity and atmosphere may vary to such an extent that human beings could not live on any other place except the earth. But a whole new attitude toward further exploration is bound to develop, and there will be no end to conjecture as to what future trips may produce.

Meanwhile, the triumph of the moon project in all its phases may not yet be widely appreciated here in America. For the amount of work that had to be done in preparation for the voyage to the moon is indescribable. The precision of the flight was fantastic. Yet, with all the scientific instrumentation and computerization, there came a time when the astronauts had to use their own skill to steer their craft so that it would land at a safer spot on the moon than the one to which automatic devices were taking it.

President Nixon, of course, was fully aware not only of the nature of the exploration but of the likelihood that the mission would be so universally applauded that it would be desirable for him to attend the "splashdown" in the Pacific. He did not go westward, however, for that purpose alone, but as the start of a trip around the world to talk peace. certainly his journey will have far greater significance, and his words will get more notice in all the countries he visits than would have been the case if the United States had not developed and successfully carried out its moon program.

Americans naturally are proud of their country's achievement, and the State Department is getting word from almost every land that the United States won a unique position of esteem among the other peoples of the world when two Americans set foot on the moon. But, with all the excitement — as representative L. Mendel Rivers, Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, suggested the other day — in the conversation between the President and the two astronauts, they forgot to take a moment to thank God that, with his help, we were permitted to explore another one of his great creations — the moon. But the American people doubtless will do so in the church services next weekend throughout the country.

Vacation Diary — 2.

The days in Hawaii flip like a calendar in a hurricane. The islands look like emerald imperfections in the vast sapphire of the Pacific. They appear to wallow in luxurious indolence, this family whirls at top speed, fearful of missing a monument, a museum or a muumuu. Late at night, the teen-agers shampoo the salt water from their hair and brush the knots until the tears come. They fall into bed unconscious.

Their mother found Hawaiian gowns at Sears. The Try-On Room got a workout. I stood outside the room, waiting to pay the bill. There was a cop watching me watch the Try-On Room so I bought a pair of sneakers I do not need.

We boarded a cabin cruiser to watch the finish of a yacht race. It was gay. Karen and Kathleen lifted rare hors d'oeuvres from a silver tray. When the boat rounded Diamond Head the waves were like big green bungalows. Kathi was so sick she was afraid she was going to die. Then she was afraid she wouldn't.

There was a Southeast Asian general aboard who wore a granite grin, even when he frowned. His government had put him in charge of building a municipal generator. When it was completed, it blew every fuse in town, including the boss's. The government had a choice: either hang him or promote him. He went up one grade and was told to take a trip around the world.

Yesterday we went up to Makaha Valley, an unbelievable paradise thirty-five miles northwest of Honolulu. It looks like the inside of an old tiger's mouth. The ocean is a blue tongue; twin sets of jagged peaks are worn molars; at the head of the valley, two mountains form a palate.

Makaha changes color every fifteen minutes. The sun and the lacy mists alter the mountains from green to gray to black; clouds slice themselves on the teeth of the mountains. Two velvet golf courses played me on successive days.

I was illiterate: couldn't read the greens. The girls went horseback riding for the first time. That night they dined standing — for the first time.

"Daddy," said Karen. "I felt sorry for the horse. So I raised myself in the saddle to take some of the weight off." The kid is going to be a logician. They marveled at the wild peacocks, and the peacocks gave the kids a long gander.

These birds must be nearsighted. At night, they tried to walk through the glass doors of our room. One has a concussion. He tried three times and walked off pigeontoed.

On another night, we stopped for dinner at the old Royal Hawaiian Hotel. we heard all the sweet sad sentimental songs of the islands. When Ed Kenney sang the Hawaiian wedding song, all my women wept into their pineapple desserts. It is shaped like a boat and they sunk it.

The island is full of R & R people. These are men back from Vietnam, meeting their wives in Honolulu for Rest and Recreation. The jokes, of course, are endless. They meet, they kiss, young fathers see their infants for the first time, and the populace sees each family for the last time.

We boarded a helicopter back from Makaha to Honolulu. this was another first for the children and they were thrilled as the chopper lifted straight up off the pad. Kelly was petrified. She lifted straight up off her seat and stiffened with horror. If I touched her, I think she would have broken in halves.

A Navy ask force is in Pearl Harbor. The streets are full of sailors in whites. These are malihinis —new visitors. they walk along Ala Moana in pairs, hunting for two of another sex who might want to attend a mission prayer meeting. They gawk at attractive faces which are Chinese, Hawaiian, Japanese, Polynesian, Filipino and continental U.S. The trouble lies in the fact that most of the pretty ones have met cruising sailors before.

There is a Bishop family here which arrived with the missionaries. They put clothes on the heathens, which introduced shame to the innocents. They are not related to my Bishops, because they have money. Mine are long on opinions, short on cash.

At midnight, with the kittens in bed, Honolulu looks like a million stars on a hill. The big waves on Waikiki lift their shoulders and walk shoreward slowly and proudly. Hippies and their girls sneak aboard moored boats in the Ala Wai Yacht club to sleep free.

Today, the girls went swimming in the bikinis. The beach boys were busy with their surfboards. To coin nothing, my kids are engulfed by a wave of resentment . . .

How to Get a Trip To the Beautiful Bahamas

WASHINGTON — If you are the son of the chairman of a powerful committee of Congress and you play it right, a lot of wonderful things can happen to you. You can get a free trip to the Bahamas for yourself and girl friend, along with a special fishing guide flown in from Florida and a side trip to Freeport, the ornate gambling capital of the Bahamas, plus an excursion on an 80-foot yacht.

At any rate, that's what happened to James Teague, son of Rep. Olin E. Teague, Texas Democrat, who is chairman of the House Veterans Committee.

The company which paid for Jim Teague's trip, with girl friend, was the Blackhawk Construction Company. Coincidentally, Blackhawk is having a series of arguments with the Veterans Administration over faulty contracts, and its political pressure was so vigorous through Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois that Veterans Administrator William Driver, one of the best in VA history, had his resignation accepted.

Just before last Fourth of July, James Teague, son of Chairman Teague of the Veterans Committee, arrived with girl friend at Chubb Cay in the Bahamas where they stayed at the Colony Club. They arrived on a plane chartered from Florida Airmotive. The pilot, John Wagner, later flew Blackhawk's chief counsel, Don Dorenzo, and his wife to the Bahamas. Dorenzo is handling 57 company appeals against the VA and he was able to give the Congressman's son a few ideas about Blackhawk's troubles with the Veterans Administration.

Part of the luxurious entertainment provided for the lucky son of the powerful Veterans Committee chairman was a cruise aboard the 80-foot yacht, the Black Hawk, owned by Andrew Machata, president of Blackhawk construction; also a fishing trip with Jim Scarborough, a fishing guide from Marineland, Del Ray Beach, flown in to help young Teague and girl friend find the best fishing spots. All was paid by Blackhawk.

Despite the guide, they failed to catch any fish worth boasting about.

The couple also visited Freeport where they registered at the Lucayan Hotel, as part of the vacation at Blackhawk's expense.

The man who arranged this was Charles H. Stevenson Jr., of Corpus Christi, Tex., friend of Rep. Teague, who occupies suite 802 in the Congressional Hotel across from the House Office Building. Because of his friendship with Teague, Stevenson had been retained by Blackhawk.

Stevenson acknowledged to this column that the trip to the Bahamas had been his idea, but piously denied, as if he expected to be believed, that it was intended as a means of buttering up Teague's father.

Whether so or not, it remains a fact that Chairman Teague did make an official inquiry at the Veterans Administration about Blackhawk's troubles with the VA. He did not imply any criticism of the VA, but the fact remains that even a routine inquiry from the chairman of the House Veterans Affairs Committee is enough to make the VA review its decisions.

Here are the Veterans Administration contracts with Blackhawk which it would like to have reviewed:

1. Two contracts to install air conditioning units in veterans hospitals in Pittsburgh and Manhattan. When Blackhawk defaulted, the VA took over the contracts and completed the work itself.

2. A 1,250-bed hospital in Hines, Ill., in the outskirts of Chicago. The VA was dissatisfied with the work and held up payments.

3. A veterans hospital at Tampa, Fla., for which Blackhawk bid $283,000 lower than its nearest competitor. But because of unsatisfactory work on other projects, VA contracting officer Jack Robinson ruled that Blackhawk was not "a responsible bidder" and awarded the contract to the J.A. Jones Company of Charlotte, N.C.

Other Lobbying Pressure

Blackhawk's president Machata is versatile. He not only entertained Chairman Teague's son and hired Teague's friend Charley Stevenson, but he also used GOP Leader Dirksen, and tried to use Sen. Jack Miller, the Republican Senator from Iowa, who picked the new VA Administrator, Don Johnson. Johnson is a West Branch, Iowa, poultry and fertilizer dealer who worked his way up through the American Legion to become national commander. Sen. Miller and Johnson are old allies in Iowa Legion politics, and when the Senator recommended Don to head the Veterans Administration, President Nixon accepted the recommendation.

Sen. Miller was approached by the Power Engineering Company of Sioux City, Iowa, Blackhawk's partner in building the Hines, Ill., hospital, where payments were held up. The man who handled the approach was Ray Murphy, president of Power Engineering.

Sen. Miller did not contact Johnson, but did make a call to VA Deputy Administrator Fred Rhodes. Miller explained that as Senator from Iowa he was calling about the problems of Power Engineering, an Iowa company.

Earlier, Dirksen had demanded at the White House that Driver, who had worked his way up from the bottom, be fired as Veterans Administrator. He was not actually fired. He resigned in disgust.

It's easy to see why. It will also be interesting to see what happens to the 57 appeals to the new, politically oriented VA Administrator prepared by Don Dorenzo, who accompanied Rep. Teague's son on the Bahamas cruise.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Soviet Defense Missile System Far Superior to America's

Color-blind Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman J. William Fulbright, consistently downplaying any Red Threats, ties his campaign against the nuclear defense proposal to the need for a treaty with the Soviet Union.

If Senator Fulbright, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Sen. George McGovern, et al, were negotiating with the Soviet Union, we'd be lucky to be left with the Statue of Liberty. Moreover, the highly publicized treaty prospect is no more a substitute for our national defense than a tin can is a substitute for the U.S. Air Force.

The nuclear defense problem has three phases: short range, intermediate, and final. The game the Soviet is playing it is playing for keeps.

The Soviet antiballistic missile system, which the Soviet General Staff calls "Galosh," already has 90 known sites that are operative. We are told that the Soviet defense "is not workable," "is no good," etc. Yet, indisputably, the Soviet is far advanced in building 30 more sites. No good? The Kremlin thinks its system is good, and is striving day and night to complete it.

This means 120 Russian nuclear defense sites versus the two now, and 10 later, in the debated U.S. proposal.

In June, 1965, former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara junked 14 missile complexes with 113 Atlas and Titan launching sites in 12 states, declaring obsolete the missiles these were built to accommodate at a building cost of $856.9 million — because of surprising Soviet missile advances. Again, it was another of the surprises the Red world always seems to have in store for us.

Moreover, when the Soviet violated the atomic test-ban understanding so solemnly agreed to with us, Russia became the only nation to have successfully test-fired a nuclear-armed missile at an incoming missile.

Thus the U.S.S.R. leaped demonstratively (not merely on paper) far ahead of us in nuclear defense and may have already cancelled out the U.S. Minuteman missile which is our chief weapon of retaliation in defense of the United States and our most credible deterrent protecting the free world.

Yet, confronted by these realities, we're told to think in terms of a treaty! The Fulbright - Kennedy - McGovern etc., fallibility opportunism, mindlessness, or worse, on this thesis is as appalling as it is dangerous.

Every dependent nation in the world that has relied on treaties instead of keeping its powder dry has come to disaster.

Treaties could not conceivably mean less than they do to the Soviet Union. If the Fulbright - Kennedy - McGovern cabal does not know that, it knows nothing. But, in any case, the nearly ageless record of treaties as a whole shows that in the normal course of international events treaties are broken, not observed. Actually, treaties are honored more in the breaking than in the observance. Treaties cannot substitite for wisdom or for military power in pursuing national objectives and maintaining the peace.

Our treaty-adherence record is the best of any major power. But every major nation, including the United States, has broken its pledged word when its leaders felt the current national interest required it.

At Yalta, at Russia's behest, both the United States and Great Britain shattered previous treaties like clay pigeons built to be shot down. The Bay of Pigs debacle and backdown shattered our ancient Monroe Doctrine forever — an edict far more formidable than any treaty. Our Vietnam involvement shattered treaties left and right.

While our country may be hoping for a nuclear defense treaty with the U.S.S.R., the antiballistic missile proposal means we are not relying on it. The Fulbright-Kennedy-McGovern cabal could easily learn at least three reasons why:

(1) For years on end the greatest weakness in our foreign policy has been an overreliance on treaties. We should give little or no weight to the expectation of performance under a decisive treaty.

(2) The leaders of the countries will have changed by the time the treaty-reliance may be critical, and all such probabilities increase the longer the treaty remains in effect.

(3) We should never bet our lives and our whole country — the destiny of the United States and all 200 million people who live here — on brains that talk treaty-security to us. Opportunistic politicians who say they believe in things like that end up in the dregs of history — and their country down with them.

Congratulations From the World

Astro Families Begin A New Life

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Families of the Apollo 11 heroes began a new life today, accepting congratulations from around the world for the historic moon mission.

"I like my life the way it is now but I know that from now on it will be changed, at least for a while," said Mrs. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., wife of the second man to set foot on the moon. "I hope we, my husband and I and our children, come back to the life we have now after a while."

"I'm a very happy and proud woman," said Mrs. Michael Collins.

"I think what he did was very, very great," Mrs. Neil A. Armstrong said of her husband, first man on the moon. "He and Buzz and Mike. I'm terribly, terribly proud of them.'

The three wives had a prominent spokesman appearing for them when the three astronauts reached the aircraft carrier Hornet.

"I speak for three of the most courageous ladies in the world —your wives. I bring yo utheir love and their congratulations," said the stand-in, President Nixon.

The President then invited the astronauts and their wives to a state dinner in Los Angeles Aug. 13 after the 21-day quarantine which began the day the lunar module Eagle lifted them from the moon's surface.

Each home of the astronauts had its own private celebration Thursday night with fellow astronauts and close friends making up the guest list. Their telephones rang constantly, and telegram and flower deliveries were frequent.

Later they were guests of honor at a more public "splashdown party" thrown by space industries.

A balloom ceiling had a moon-like decoration, bathed in blue light. Among the 12,000 pastries on the snack tables was a huge cookie inscribed "one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind," Armstrong's words, the first spoken on the moon.

Mrs. Armstrong said after the landing: "We received thousands of messages from well-wishers all over the world. The kindness and faith of everyone has been a big help."

The first firm commitment the wives have made in the coming days will be a trip early Sunday morning to Ellington Air Force Base to meet the plane bringing home their astronaut husbands in the quarantine trailer.

"At least we can wave to them though the window," said Mrs. Aldrin. "We'll be there."

The men will go through a sealed passage into the lunar receiving laboratory where they will live out the quarantine. The families will be able to see them through glass and talk to them on an intercom.

An Exultant Nation Lavishes Praise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With pealing bells and wailing sirens, hoarse cheers and popping firecrackers, champagne celebrations and solemn prayers, an exultant nation saluted the safe return of its Apollo 11 astronauts.

Americans in tiny crossroads towns and in sprawling concrete cities focused their attention on television screens Thursday to watch the splashdown of the spacecraft carrying the first men to walk the moon. Others listened to radio broadcasts.

Then the voyage of astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldin Jr. and Michael Collins which captured the world's imagination for eight days was over and the celebrating began.

Civil defense sirens everywhere in Los Angeles County except the City of Los Angeles wailed a two minute tribute. Church bells chimed along Fifth Avenue in New York. Ticker tape fluttered down in San Francisco.

In Armstong's home town of Wapakoneta, Ohio, the high school band appeared in front of his parents' home on Neil Armstrong Drive and played a serenade. "Oh, bless their hearts!" said Mrs. Stephen Armstrong, the astronaut's mother.

"I don't have words to describe how proud I am," said Neil's father. "It's not proud. I'd have to get a dictionary to find a better word."

In Montclair, N.J., the Clairidge Theater took down the letters on its marquee advertising the current attraction and replaced them with: "Congratulations Buzz Aldrin—Montclair Man on the Moon."

Thousands on their lunch hour in New York City jammed sidewalks in front of television showrooms to view the end of the epic adventure.

Cheers erupted on the floors of the New York and American Stock Exchanges and the tape that normally carries the price quotations flashed: "Astronauts Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins, so proudly we hail you."

In St. Patrick's Cathedral, Terence Cardinal Cooke celebrated a Mass of thanksgiving.

"Father in heaven, hear our prayers," the Cardinal said. "We thank You for the wondrous achievements of mankind's first visit to the moon and for the safe return of the brave astronauts."

A champagne celebration was held at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology laboratory in Boston where the Apollo 11 guidance and navigation system was developed.

At the Hayden Planetarium in Manhattan, 800 invited guests from the United Nations, business, industry, finance and government toasted the success with a special vintage champagne after watching the splashdown.

In Huntsville, Ala., where the Saturn 5 rocket was developed, all businesses were asked to close for a post splashdown celebration.

In Amsterdam, N.Y., Mayor John P. Gomulka declared Thursday Rocco Petrone Day, in honor of the native son who was in charge of the Apollo 11 launch eight days earlier.

Gov. Paul Laxalt of Nevada seemed to sum it all up when he declared: "Never in our lifetime have people everywhere shared such a remarkable experience."

Exotic Isolation Ward Awaits Space Heroes

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—An exotic, space age isolation ward where a ping pong game may be the big event of the day awaits the first men back from the moon.

Without a second of exposure to the outside world, Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins will be transferred from the mobile trailer they are now in to the relative luxury of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's new lunar receiving laboratory (LRL).

The swap is scheduled for the early hours of Sunday.

Fifteen people will live in the LRL until a quarantine ends Aug. 12—the three spacemen, three doctors and nine scientists and technicians.

They will jab the spacemen with needles, question them about their epic voyage and make them pedal stationary bicycles until they're exhausted.

There will be 16 days of this routine for the space voyagers after they arrive here from their landing in the Pacific.

Some scientists fear the astronauts may be carriers of deadly germs from the moon, although there's not a scientist in the space agency who really thinks the moon has germs or any other type of life. But they cannot be sure and hence the quarantine.

"It's really kind of an insurance program," says Dr. William Kemmerer, director of the preventive medicine branch at the Manned Spacecraft Center.

The astronauts will fly to Houston in the silver trailer they now are in aboard the USS Hornet, the recovery carrier that picked them up in the Pacific, 950 miles southwest of Hawaii, Thursday. The carrier will get to Hawaii Saturday, and the astronauts and trailer will be flown to Texas from there.

Each astronaut and each of the three doctors staying with them will have a bedroom and an office. There is a joint conference room.

Judge Blocks Hearing For Utica Police Official

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — An appellate judge today blocked a hearing for a suspended Utica police official until a decision can be made by the full Appellate Division of State Supreme Court.

The ruling by Justice Earl Bastow bans Hillard J. Trubitt, Utica's public safety commissioner, from holding a hearing for suspended Deputy Police Chief John W. Clark.

Bastow's order remains in effect until Sept. 8 when the full appellate court convenes in Rochester. The court will decide at that time whether Trubitt should go ahead with the hearing or, as Clark has asked, the case go before a judge.

Trubitt suspended Clark without pay six weeks ago on charges Clark had arranged for illegal wiretaps.

Clark went to court and asked for a hearing before a judge. The deputy police chief claimed Trubitt was prejudiced and would not give him a fair hearing.

Justice James O'Connor of State Supreme Court heard the dispute and ruled that Trubitt could proceed with the hearing.

But Clark once again went back to court—this time to the Appellate Division—to head off the hearing.

In an affidavit submitted to Justice Bastow in Utica earlier this week, Clark said that shortly after Trubitt became commissioner in 1968 Trubitt told him and Police Chie. Vincent LaFleur "to resort to a little illegal wiretapping and that he would not be averse to it."

Clark said Trubitt made the statement after the deputy police chief had complained it was becoming more and more difficult to get court orders for wiretaps.

Clark's attorney, Bert Lockwood, asked in court why Trubitt had not submitted an affidavit in reply to Clark.

Nathan Siegel, assistant corporation counsel of Utica, filed an affidavit of his own saying there were no limits to which Clark would go in "making wild accusations."

Paltz Professor Translates Works of Polish Poet

NEW PALTZ "The Dancing Socrates" and other poems by Julian Tuwim, one of Poland's great modern poets, have been selected and translated by Adam Gillon, professor of English and world literature at State University College, New Paltz, and published by Twayne Publishers, New York City.

The volume, titled after the "Dancing Socrates" piece, marks the 50th anniversary of the appearance of Tuwim's first book, "Lying in Wait for God," published in 1918.

Tuwim, who died in 1953, wrote lyrical poems, philosophical poems, works of social protest, satire, dramatic sketches, popular songs, and was himself a translator from several languages, especially Russian.

The Gillon selections represent the poet's early and mature periods, and selections from Tuwim's major work, The Polish Flowers, and from his poems for children.

Professor Gillon is also the author of The Eternal Solitary; A Study of Joseph Conrad; Selected Poems and Translations; In the manner of Haiku; Seven Aspects of Man; Cup of Fury, a novel; and Introduction to Modern Polish Literature. He has written short stories and several plays and is the co-editor of the Polish Section and editor of the Hebrew Section of Twaynes' World Author Series.

In 1967, he was awarded the Alfred Jurzykowski Foundation Award for his translations of Polish literature.

Funeral Held For 4 of Family Killed in Crash

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (UPI)— Funeral services were held at St. Catherine's Church Thursday for four members of a Broome County family killed in a highway crash last weekend.

The four were among six persons who perished in the crash Sunday on Route 7 near Afton, Chenango County. It was the deadliest highway crash in the county's history, officials said.

Normand P. Gagnon, 42; his wife, Anne, 37; son, Donald, 7, and 19-month-old daughter Jeanne, all of Chenango Bridge, were buried in Calvary Cemetery. The couple's two other children—Diane, 15, and Elaine, 12 — remained hospitalized with injuries suffered in the accident.

Police said Gary P. King, 20, of Truxton, Cortland County, passed two cars and was attempting to pass a truck in a no passing zone when his auto collided head-on with the oncoming Gagnon vehicle.

King and a passenger, Walter Schmidt, 16, also of Truxton, were hospitalized. Two other passengers, Myron Hulbert, 22, and Richard Crandall, both of Truxton, were killed.

Teddy Kennedy Pleads...

midnight last Friday on Chappaquiddick Island, adjacent to Martha's Vineyard, the larger island on which Edgartown is situated.

Kennedy's car went off a narrow, rockety bridge and landed wheels-up in a tidal pond. The senator escaped, but Miss Mary Jo Kopechne, a pretty 28-year-old blonde from Washington, D.C., drowned.

Kennedy originally was to have appeared Monday at a show-cause hearing. The purpose of such a hearing would be to determine whether the state had sufficient evidence to issue a summons and bring the senator to trial.

But Clark said Thursday night in a three-paragraph statement read to about 50 newsmen that Kennedy had waived his right to this hearing and was prepared to accept the summons.

Clark was besieged with questions after he read the statement, but refused to answer them. He prefaced the statement by saying:

"I regret that this is all I can say and no more."

The surprise switch followed a day of conferences between Kennedy and several of his closest friends and political advisers at the Massachusetts Democrat's home on Squaw Island, near the Kennedy family compound in Hyannis Port on Cape Cod.

Those who conferred Thursday with Kennedy included Robert S. McNamara, secretary of defense under Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson and now president of the World Bank; Theodore C. Sorensen, long-time aide to the late President Kennedy and friend of the family; and Burke Marshall, former assistant U.S. attorney general and another close friend of the senator.

Others reported at Squaw Island Thursday were Richard Goodwin, another key aide to the late President Kennedy and friend of the family; Paul Markham, former U.S. attorney for Massachusetts who accompanied Kennedy when he reported the accident to police; Joseph F. Gargan, first cousin to the senator and one of his closest friends; and David Burke, a staff member. Kennedy said in a police statement the day after the accident that he dived repeatedly in attempts to locate Miss Kopechne, but was unsuccessful.

He said he finally gave up, exhausted, and walked the mile or so back to a cottage where he and Miss Kopechne had been attending a cook-out. He said he had been taking Miss Kopechne to catch a ferry when the accident occurred.

Once back at the cottage, Kennedy said, he climbed into the rear seat of a car parked outside and asked "someone"—he didn't say who—to return him to Edgartown, where he was staying in a hotel. He said he remembered walking around once back in Edgartown, and concluded by saying that he went to the police when he fully realized what happened.

Kennedy placed the time of the accident at 11:15 p.m. Friday. The last ferry for the Vineyard left at midnight. The police report placed the time of the accident closer to 1 a.m. Saturday.

Suggests U.S. Subsidize Credit For the Poor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The government should subsidize low interest, deferred payment credit to the poor in much the same way as it does for young people in college, an official of the Hotel Trades Association suggested Thursday.

Mrs. Shirley Kronberg made her proposal at Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz's public hearing on consumer credit practices, held in his offices.

After documenting case after case of poor consumers who have been forced to pay more than they thought they had agreed to for faulty, undelivered or second-hand products, Mrs. Kronberg asked:

"Why can't a poor man with a good job get a government subsidized 10-year loan at three per cent interest the same way a college student does?"

problem for a long time to come.

Chamber members in attendance did, however, vote unanimously to present a resolution to the Town Board and the Planning and Zoning Boards concerning the sign section of the local zoning ordinance. The Chamber will strongly recommend that provisions be made for directional signs in the town at various locations.

The resolution is not to be construed as an attack upon the present zoning ordinance, says the Chamber, but will be offered as a "workable solution" to help aid businesses which suffer a "hardship" from being located far from the center of town. The Chamber would like to see directional signs in the village on "community poles" instructing visitors "where to go" and "how to get to" isolated galleries, shops and other enterprises. Such signs, feels the Chamber, would eliminate the large number of paper posters now in use and, if placed in the village green area or center of town, would help those businesses in outlying areas by listing their names, services offered, and the direction to their location.

Chamber members also elected four members to the organization's Board of Directors at Thursday's meeting from a slate of eight candidates. Re-elected to succeed themselves were Gordon Anderson, hardware store owner, and Mrs. Kiki Minervini, local newspaper woman. Named to fill two existing vacancies, created when clothing store owner Harry Alpern retired and office services manager Robert Hewes sold his business and moved away, were Wayne Underhill Jr., of the local dry cleaners, and attorney James Myers.

The Chamber also is planning for the future a narcotics panel meeting similar to its highly successful June meeting on the hippie impact.

Tornadoes Hit In Five States

By United Press International

Thundershowers struck several sections of the nation early today. Tornadoes were reported Thursday in Illinois, Colorado, Louisiana, Arkansas and Indiana.

Thundershowers occurred from the Southern and Central High Plains across the Rockies the Central Pacific Coast, in the Upper Midwest, and from the Lower Great Lakes to the East and Central Gulf coastal region.

Near Harrison, Ark., and Springfield, Mo., a policeman and his 12-year-old son were killed when a bolt of lightning struck them as they stood near a camper truck on the shores of Table Rock Lake, which straddles the Arkansas-Missouri border.

Cooler and less humid air moved across the Northwest to the Great Lakes.

New Jersey faced a threat of possible serious flooding if it received more heavy rains. In Trenton, the U.S. Weather Bureau forecast rain through today, and warned of a "threat of heavy flooding" in the flood-prone northern part of New Jersey.

We reached for the Moon...

. . . and grasped it, in the most thrilling achievement of man yet known. For centuries man has dreamed of landing on the moon and now that dream is a reality. Today he stands upon the lunar surface, awed by the universe and exalted by the thought of what he has achieved and will continue to achieve in years to come. We salute the many who contributed to this accomplishment. We salute our astronauts for their daring exploits in the tradition of Columbus and other discoverers. The successful moon landing is the first step in the exploration of space . . . an exploration we all have a tremendous stake in.

TOUCH DOWN!!

We Salute . . . We Celebrate Man's First Landing on the Moon

The world thrills to the news. Man has landed on the moon! We join with millions in paying tribute to the astronauts of Apollo 11, who have achieved this great goal. Their awe-inspiring feat makes us deeply proud to be Americans. With equal pride, we salute all the astronauts who, from the earliest days of our space program to the recent Apollo missions, have selflessly sought to further our aims and the aims of all mankind, in conquering the challenge of space. Indeed, we salute all those modern-day pioneers and workers who, by the thousands, on earth as in space, have done their share to make this supreme achievement possible. In this triumphant hour, we are proud . . . and we are humbly grateful.

In photo at right, Mrs. Frank Blum, director of the Northern Dutchess Community Services instructs one of the youngsters in one of the class sessions. The day camp started operations this week for children ranging from two to 14. Children were sent this week from five area migrant camps. Five women help with the supervision while younger girls work for the Youth Corps. This is Mrs. Blum's second year as director. (Freeman photos by Haines).

Fatum's Carry One, Treat 17

KINGSTON

While transporting a patient from Kingston Hospital to the North Shore Hospital on Long Island recently, two attendants on a Fatum's ambulance made three unscheduled stops to treat 17 persons injured in traffic accidents.

Burt Quick and Victor Wood, ambulance attendants, were taking Mrs. Eleanor Neunzig, 49, of Hicksville, to the Long Island Hospital, for further treatment of serious injuries she sustained in an accident on the Thruway July 15. The car in which the woman was riding crashed into trees nine miles south of this city, after a rear wheel snapped off as an axle broke.

Heading for the Long Island hospital, Quick and Wood came upon the scene of a motor vehicle accident south of New Paltz. They stopped the ambulance and treated five persons until the Newburgh Rescue Squad arrived and removed the injured to St. Luke's Hospital.

While driving toward the Long Island hospital later, the two Fatum's employes stopped at the scene of another accident, which involved a car that overturned on the L. I. Expressway and caught fire. After extinguishing the blaze with equipment taken from the ambulance, Quick and Wood administered treatment to seven injured persons, and remained with them until the arrival of a local ambulance.

Quick said that on the way back to Kingston they approached the scene of another highway accident just outside Harriman. They stopped and administered aid to five persons and took them from the Thruway to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh.

On their return to Fatum's Ambulance Service station on Clinton Avenue, the two attendants had to put a new supply of first aid material on the ambulance, to replace the material that was used in treatment of the 17 persons injured in the mishaps.

"GREEK FIRE"

One of the first and most effective of all incendiary mixtures was Greek fire, invented in A.D. 670. It contained petroleum and a combination of other flammable materials, and was used as late as the Civil War by Confederate agents in the North in a bottled form and by Union troops in artillery shells, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Larger Class Of Freshmen Set at Bard

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON

The freshman class at Bard College will be 'slightly larger than average" with about 240 students this fall.

Admissions have closed, but there may be some additions to the approximate number before the school year begins.

"We begin classes as soon as the public high schools," said Annys Wilson, publicity director for Bard yesterday. New students will arrive to register Sept. 3, right after Labor Day weekend, and former students will register Sept. 4. Classes will begin the fifth."

A federal aid grant of $500,000 has been received for the college to renovate the interior of the Stone Row dormitory, in the oldest and central part of the campus. Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. was instrumental in obtaining the funds.

The funds will be used to convert four rooms suites to three room suites. "The building will hold fewer persons, but in a more modern atmosphere," said Mrs. Wilson. A local architect is being retained for the project.

As in the past, quite a few students will live in the surrounding communities off campus. "We have always done this and it works satisfactorily," said the PR director.

2 Arrested On Drug Charges

WOODSTOCK

Investigation of a complaint by town police shortly before midnight Thursday, resulted in the arrest of a 20-year-old man and a woman on charges involving criminal possession of dangerous drugs—marijuana.

Chief William Watrous and Officers Warren Graver and James Kimms took into custody Joseph Nicholas Cieri, of Box 183, Woodstock and Carol Ann Markley, 24, of Farmview Lane, Wichita, Kansas.

The two were charged with criminal possession of dangerous drugs in the first and fourth degrees.

The defendants were arraigned before Town Justice Rudolf Baumgarten, who committed the two to the county jail without bail and adjourned hearing pending further investigation by local police officers and BCI Investigator Fred Cooper.

Police said the defendants had in their possession several small bags of marijuana and an assortment of pills that are to be analyzed at the State Police laboratory.

How to Buy Treasury Bills

Q — Where do you buy Treasury bills? In what denomination? How much do you pay to buy bills? — M.S., E.P., J.S., R.H.

A — Treasury bills, because of their attractive yields, are receiving increasing attention from the small investor. Purchases in small amounts — in multiples of $1,000 — are possible, if you have a co-operative broker. (Anything under $100,000 is considered an odd-lot.) Denominations or face values range between $1,000 and $1 million but bills are sold at a discount and it is the difference between this and the face value that determines their yield.

Every Monday afternoon the Treasury Department auctions or rolls over these short-term obligations to replace maturing issues. A bond dealer who specializes in governments may or may not be interested in selling an odd-lot — they are accustomed to institutional orders of $1 million or more. If bills are bought through a broker — this is probably your best source.

There is a small commission and service charge. By placing an order no later than Friday, your purchase will be included with others in the Monday auction, avoiding an odd-lot charge.

In spite of these various fees you should still get a return equal to around 7 per cent on a 360-day basis, depending on whether the bill matures in 13, 26 or 52 weeks.

Treasury bills can be purchased directly through one of the 36 Federal Reserve Banks, but payment in advance and a good amount of persistence will be required. Other banks which are members of the Federal Reserve System may also purchase Treasury bills for you. In any case, while you may have difficulty locating an agent willing to sell you an odd-lot, Treasury bills are available for the small investor.

There is a definite risk of a small capital loss if the bill is sold on the open market prior to maturity. Particularly if interest rates continue to go up. By holding to maturity the risk is eliminated; the government will pay you the face value.

52 Private N. Y. Schools Are Eligible for Funds

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Fifty-two private institutions of higher education in the state have been declared eligible to receive state financial assistance under a program that takes effect this September, it was announced today.

A total of $24 million will be paid to the schools during the 1969-70 academic year, the State Education Department said.

None of the 52 schools is church-affiliated.

The aid program was approved by the 1968 legislature after a study by a special panel headed by McGeorge Bundy, president of the Ford Foundation.

Each of the schools will receive $400 for each bachelor's and master's degrees and $2,400 for each doctoral degree conferred last June.

Acting Education Commissioner Ewald Nyquist said in a statement accompanying the designation of the 52 schools that "the program reflects the state's concern for maintaining and improving the quality of the private sector of the educational system as well as the public institutions."

The statement said an additional 33 private institutions had requested aid under the program but that their eligibility still was pending.

It was learned, however, that nearly all of those 33 schools are church-affiliated and that they have been told by letter that the education department had come to the "tentative conclusion" that they are not constitutionally eligible to receive state assistance.

The State Constitution prohibits direct or indirect state aid to any chuch-affiliated institution.

During the 1969 session the legislature passed a bill designed to aid the granting of state money to sectarian colleges and universities in New York.

The measure reportedly was introduced at the request of Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges, a Roman Catholic. The legislation was vetoed, however, by Gov. Rockefeller.

Rockefeller said in his veto message he favored helping church-operated colleges but was forced to reject the bill on constitutional grounds.

He proposed that the legislature act to amend the constitution to make such assistance legal.

Innocent Plea To Charge Of Menacing

Old Ferry Property

Rhinecliff Face Lifting

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINECLIFF

(Ed. Note: A Jan. 14 Freeman article concerned itself with the disrepair of the Rhinecliff ferry mooring and hopes that the site could be used beneficially by the Town of Rhinebeck. While no limited ferry service is in the foreseeable future, much concerted work has gone into making the property a more pleasant site.)

Conservation has not been a strong point of the American people in the past, and one of nature's great resources, the Hudson River, has been mistreated and neglected.

Operating under the slogan, "The only way to get anything done is to do it yourself" several Town of Rhinebeck citizens have instigated proceedings in an effort to preserve their patch of river frontage.

The Town owns a small parcel of land at the very western terminal point of Route 308 in the hamlet of Rhinecliff. The property begins on the western border of the Penn-Central Railroad property and extends to the river itself, a distance of perhaps 100 feet.

A small history of that plot of ground was given to The Freeman by Supervisor Rowland Sharpe. "The Town bought that property at the time the ferry was discontinued, in 1957, when the bridge was opened," he said.

"Since that time the Rhinebeck-Rhinecliff Boat Club has been given permission to build a small equipment building on the property, as long as the rights of the majority of the people were not interfered with. The large old building has been dismantled."

This spring, heavy timbers were contributed to the cause and were used as shoring for the old pilings still in place, many of them for a hundred years. George Wyant, superintendent of highways, then directed the area to be filled with gravel and leveled off into an attractive docking facility.

The boat club, expanding with a current membership of "about 50 persons," according to Daryl Lucia, put up its building and received paint from the town to tidy up the site.

Society Lauded

Ernest K. Von Brand, a resident near the property, has nothing but words of praise for another fledgling organization known as the Riveredge Arbor Society, which begun this spring under the moving force of Mrs. Harold Kotzum.

"Mrs. Kotzum interested local people in getting the place cleaned up, and has had much influence in sponsoring contests for neat appearing houses and yards in Rhinecliff," he said.

The Society held a picnic on the dock last month, which was well attended and enjoyed largely because of the natural charms of the river, which laps at the pilings a few feet away, and also because of the care that has gone into preparing the site.

Von Brand emphasizes that pilings are still badly needed. "We could use money from the state," he says. "They really went overboard in Hudson. Perhaps they could have spread the wealth around a little more," he continued, referring to the mammoth state project on the waterfront in the City of Hudson.

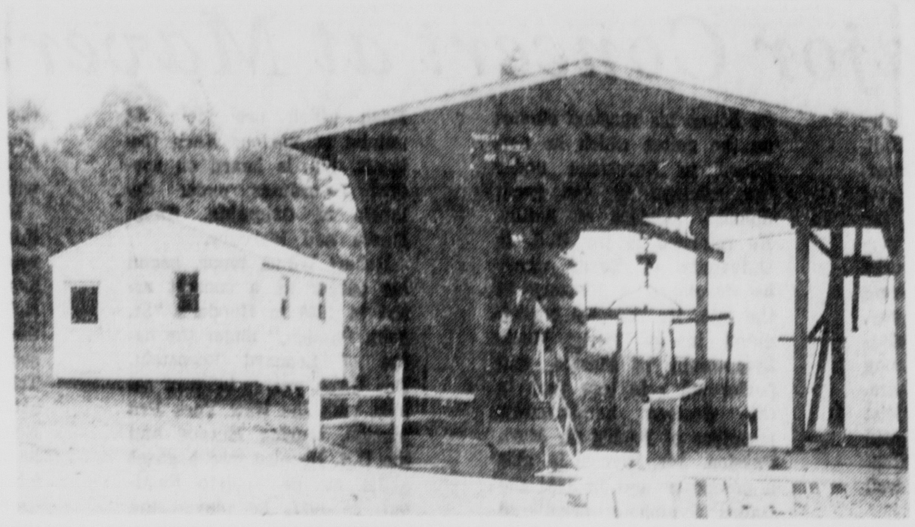

Von Brand also noted that the small boat launch employed a hoist at low tide, but none was necessary at high tide.

State Aid Possible

Town Councilman Bill Allen instigated a meeting with a representative of the State Parks Commission in an effort to raise some money from the state to get the dock site into good condition, to be able to be used as a small park.

The spokesman from the Taconic Park Commission said that the amount of land would not warrant a park, but money could be obtained from the state if an application were made next year. "The five per cent cut in the state budget precludes any possibility of getting aid this year," said Supervisor Sharpe.

Richard Crowley, Rhinebeck architect, has indicated that the Rhinebeck Historical Society is planning a box supper on the dock today, proof that the site is beginning to be enjoyed by townspeople for its good qualities.

River Revival

The eastern terminal of the Kingston-Rhinebeck ferry is coming alive again through the efforts of Dutchess County residents within the immediate area. Where the ferry once docked to discharge passengers, pleasure craft now tie up to enjoy the view of the majestic Hudson. Through the efforts of the 50-member Rhinebeck - Rhinecliff Boat Club and the fledgling Riveredge Arbor Society the site is becoming a popular picnic spot. The Arbor Society held an outing there last month and the Rhinebeck Historical. (Freeman photo by Haines).

No Clearwater Word

RHINECLIFF

No word has yet been received as to whether the Hudson River sloop "Clearwater" will dock at the renovated Rhinecliff facilities, according to Mrs. Harold Kotzum of Rhinebeck.

"As of now, I'm not quite sure of the progress of the sloop, but we hope to have a docking sometime in August," she said.

Results were announced this week in the beautification contest sponsored by the Riveredge Arbor Society. A prize of $25 was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Queen, "a young couple who took over an old, dilapidated house and have made very good progress on it," said Mrs. Kotzum.

The purpose of the contest was general refurbishing of the boasts beautiful scenery from almost every spot due to a steep incline of bank.

The Riveredge Society is part of the adult program of the Morton Memorial Library trust fund; Mrs. Kotzum has long been associated with the library. Judges of the recent contest included Donald Cole, president of the Board of Trustees; Gordon Cotting and Commodore Gordon Atkins of the Rhinebeck-Rhinecliff Boat Club.

Tax Revision Would Affect All

WASHINGTON (AP) — House tax reformers have fashioned a provision that would make it impossible for wealthy individuals to avoid income taxes entirely through tax-free investments or special loss and deduction allowances.

Under the proposal tentatively adopted by the House Ways and Means Committee, everyone would pay taxes on at least half his income.

The Treasury, by rough estimates, would pick up a minimum $200 million a year in additional taxes.

The provision is based on a proposal the Nixon administration called "limit on tax preferences," but it goes farther.

President Nixon proposed taxing some income now exempted because of allowances for accelerated depreciation on real estate, certain farm losses, intangible drilling expenses in the oil industy, and charitable contributions of property that has gained in value.

In addition to using these tax preferences in figuring a minimum income tax, the committee proposal would include interest on municipal bonds and the untaxed one-half of capital gains.

A taxpayer who had more than half his income in such preferences would have to show them all in his return.

Then, for example, if a taxpayer had $100,000 in ordinary income and $200,000 in preferences, he would add them up and be taxed on half the sum—$150,000. Under present law he would be taxed only on the $100,000 ordinary income.

Tax preferences, however, would not be reduced under $10,000 for anyone.

The committee also agreed tentatively on tighter rules on gifts of property that appreciate in value while held by the donor.

The committee is driving to produce a comprehensive tax bill for House consideration before the Aug. 13 recess. Spokesmen said the panel hopes to finish its major policy decisions this week and polish the language next week.

Major Concert at Maverick

The Renaissance Quartet will return to Maverick Hall, Woodstock, on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A quartet of instruments and voice, the group specializes in the performance of the masterworks of 15th to 17th centuries from Spain, Italy, Germany, France, and England. Selections will be played and sung by outstanding performers, each musician a fine soloist who has had long experience in chamber music with Renaissance instruments as well as modern instruments.

The quartet includes Raymond Lynch, lutenist, who is one of the new breed of early music performers in the U.S. Born in southwestern U. S., he began his musical studies on the guitar which he perfected in Barcelona under the tutelage of the great Spanish masters of guitar. He returned to the U. S. to University of Texas where he developed a mastery of the lute. He recently participated in an Early Music Symposium in Mexico, and performed solo lute part in the western hemisphere's premiere of Bach's St. Mark Passion. Mr. Lynch is also a composer and in 1968 the Dallas Symphony premiered his "Refractions for Orchestra."

Barbara Mueser is one of the few masters of viola da gamba. She has performed the major concert works of Bach which use viola da gamba at various Bach festivals. She is heard on several recordings under the labels of Columbia, Kapp, Decca and Mercury.

Robert White, tenor, began his career as a concert artist in 1959 in Handel's "St. John Passion," under the baton of Leonard Bernstein. For three years, he was soloist with the New York Pro Musica, touring Europe and the U.S. He also was a guest artist at the Spoleto Festival. In 1963, he played the leading role in the American premiere of Hindesmith's "Long Christmas Dinner." The same year, Mr. White was honored to appear at the White House for President Kennedy in an evening of Elizabethan verse and music with actor Basil Rathbone.

Morris Newman completes this quartet with his brilliant recorder playing. He, too, has been a member of the N. Y. Pro Musica as well as the Kranis Baroque Ensemble. He is founder of the Trio Flauto Dolce. His versatility extends to other Renaissance instruments and he has appeared as bassoonist with the New Art Wind Quintet, the Festival Winds, the Symphony of the Air, and other orchestras.

For additional information contact Basil Eliescu, Maverick Road, Woodstock.

THE RENAISSANCE QUARTET — A major concert at Maverick Hall in Woodstock on Sunday will feature the Renaissance Quartet. Members of the group include (L-R) Raymond Lynch, lutenist; Robert White, tenor; Morris Newman, recorder; and Barbara Mueser, viola de gamba. The performance will begin at 3 p. m.

How's Your Maturity Quotient

What does "maturity" mean to you?

Middle-age spread and narrow, elderly ideas? Or a fortunate state of mind that can help you do more and be more, whether you're 15 or 50?

Here's how Dr. Chaim Genott, noted child psychologist and best-selling author, describes the end product of the long growing-up process: "A human being with compassion, commitment and courage, a person whose life is guided by a core of strength and a code of fairness."

If you don't quite see yourself in that picture, take heart. The mere fact that you can admit to immaturities shows that you are more mature than you think!

The following quiz, compiled by personnel experts for the American Hotel & Motel Association, may give you further clues. While these questions and answers are not intended to cover the whole subject, they can help you rate yourself in certain key areas of maturity.

1. Can you accept responsibility for your own failures and mistakes? The average 3-year-old is a genius at finding scapegoats and alibis. ("Mary made me spill my milk.") Many people never get far above this level, though their excuses do become more sophisticated. ("I couldn't finish my education because my parents didn't have the money.") The mature person knows that he — not his parents, his teachers, his boss or Fate—is ultimately responsible for the way his life turns out.

2. Can you put off till tomorrow what you'd rather do today? If you can postpone immediate pleasures for the sake of future rewards, you have taken a giant step toward a self-disciplined maturity. The infant (or infantile person) wants what he wants when he wants it. The grown-up (or growing-up) person can turn off the TV ... deny himself that shiny new car...and buckle down to passing his exams, earning a degree or a promotion, saving for a rainy day or a sunnier future for his family.

3. Are your goals worthy of you? Your level of aspiration — professional, social, and yes, moral — is a sign of how well-developed your personality has become. If you have a realistic idea of your assets and liabilities, and if you like and respect the person you are, then you are less likely to cheat the person you could be.

4. Do you genuinely like other people — and show it? If you are mature enough to have a healthy self-respect, then you are probably warm, friendly and considerate to others. And you reap the rewards wherever you go; in a recent survey of hotel presonnel, 93 per cent say they overextend themselves for patrons who treat them with respect.

Those who make a career of rudeness and sarcasm — who occasionally enjoy tearing property up as well as tearing people down — are said by psychologists to be contempt. Unfortunately, the world usually shares their opinion.

5. Do you want everybody to like you? This is an immature attitude! You can be friendly and outgoing without running your life like a mature person is unwilling to be false and wishy-washy just to win a few dubious "friends." He is not afraid to say "no" because he is then freer to say "yes" to the activities and people that really matter to him.

6. Do you feel strongly about a lot of things? Many people mistake enthusiasm for immaturity. However, detachment and "cool" are not necessarily signs of being grown up. They may mean that you are giving up, "copping out." According to psychiatrist Theodore Isaac Rubin, author of David and Lisa, "Dedication to winning on any level, in any area requires an intensity of emotional investment."

7. Do you act constructively on your beliefs? If you don't like the way this country is being run, are you getting involved in politics to work for the changes you want? If you are concerned about the poor and the deprived, have you tried volunteer work to help them? (Teaching one underprivileged kid to read better could have more impact than many a dozen demonstrators.)

8. Do you use your money or does it use you? People who hoard or spend compulsively . . . who must surround themselves with big-ticket status symbols . . . who use money as a weapon against husband or wife . . . have lost real control of their purse strings. Often they fail to buy things which would make them safer or happier. For instance, many immature people hate to spend for intangible things such as insurance or a hotel vacation. And some people unconsciously punish themselves by getting into financial scrapes: If you can avoid those pitfalls—and if you don't think "budget" is a dirty word—you're probably reasonably mature about money.

Of course, no one ever achieves complete maturity. (If your score was too perfect, check again). Becoming an adult is hard work. Although no previous experience is required, the hours are long, the vacations few. But the rewards are tremendous — and getting there can be half the fun!

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE

Dear Heloise:

Cottage cheese cartons are ideal soap holders in the bathtub.

The little bucket floats with the soap bar in it. No need to hunt for the soap on the bottom of the tub.

Another thing...you can use the carton to rinse your back by filling it and pouring it over your shoulder.

Dear Heloise:

For years I had trouble replacing elastic on half slips, especially nylon.

I know having a sewing machine is a blessing, but if you don't have one, you might try my way.

I was mending one of my slips and the needle kept poking into my finger. I took my thimble off and put it on the forefinger of my left hand (being right-handed). To my surprise I found I could stretch the elastic on the thimble by holding it down with the pressure of the thumb and it stayed put.

It worked like a million. You can keep a thimble on your right hand, too, so it will be easy to push the needle through the elastic.

Dear Heloise:

When making a colored icing for a cake, I seem to always pour too many drops of coloring into the mixture.

I have discovered that if I dip a facial tissue in the coloring, it soakes up all the excess in a jiffy.

Mrs. D. Lippingwell

Dear Heloise:

The system of putting things on high shelves in labeled shoeboxes to make them easily accessible is an excellent idea that I have used for some time, and I would like to add a tip to make it even easier.

I cut a little finger hole in the lower front edge of each box.

That way, when I open the bottom cabinet door and step up on the bottom shelf, all 5 feet 2 of me can easily get things off the very highest shelf.

Fall Fashions Show Hemlines Dropping to Mid-Calf

By DOROTHY A. NAREL
Woman's Page Editor

Joan Deppa of UPI News in Paris, France has flashed the word to us—Dior is dropping the hemline!

The word was out Thursday, July 24 officially. It seems a Dior spokesman told UPI their designer, Marc Bohan, was producing three-fourths of his coats, dresses and suits with skirts that stopped at mid-calf or below.

What a welcome relief to the middle-aged! But in the collection Bohan plans to unveil next week, he is also including some very, very short skirts — welcome news to the mini set.

"We're not allowed to use the term mini-skirt but they are very, very short," the Dior spokesman said.

It seems that trousers will be making the scene as before. The "new new look" will be mannish by comparison with the wasp-waisted, full-skirted original. However, there will be no need for the complicated padding and corsets demanded to achieve the original "new Look" in 1947.

Skirts will be boxy and long, slim but easy skirts will be in soft fabrics.

Bohan will not be alone in trying new longer skirt lengths, it is reported. Yves St. Laurent has been edging in that direction. He jumped the gun and has a few dresses and coats in mid-calf length on sale in his ready-to-wear boutique in the Paris student quarter, Deppa informs us.

According to the latest European reports all say the longer skirts will be designed for daytime as well as evening wear. But all side with Bohan in saying they will also show lots of what most people call mini-skirts.

Several collections, notably Courreges, will stick with the idea that long skirts are outdated except for glamourous evenings. Courreges goes one better and says that skirts as a whole are an idea of the past and that jump suits and trousers are what the women of the future will wear.

UPI reporter Joan Deppa sums it up this way: "There are plenty of different ways to dress and the well-dressed woman simply will choose the way or ways that suit her best."

From Rome, Italy, Brenda W. Rotzoll reports the bottom of the calf is the most common length. The Italian fall and winter fashion collections ended as they began showing uniformly slim shoulders and sleeves, flared skirts and countless jumpsuits or tunics and trousers.

Also shown were Maxicoats whose lengths ranged anywhere from just below the knee to right down to the ground.

Boots far outnumbered shoes in the Rome showings. some even appeared with ball gowns and THAT is a bit much!

Hats ranged from snug cloches cut out over the ears to 10-gallon affairs topped with fox. There were long scarves knotted around the neck and trailing to the hemlines.

Miss Rotzoll also reports that jewelry has become less obtrusive although a few chain belts hung on, some of them suspended from waist-length necklines. Glad to see them go.

Wool came in worsteds, often reversible, subdued plaids, tweeds, weaves dyed to look like tweeds and some nubby boucles.

Miss Rotzoll also reports that the favorite color seemed to be plum ranging from pinky pale to clear amethyst to almost charcoal grey. Black and white, singly or together, were everywhere. Other top colors were brown, light grey, dark green and some sapphire blue and tomato red. A few designers liked pale peach, particularly in satin for evening.

Valentino premiered a triangular fringed shawl as big or bigger than great-granny used for bundling up outside, our UPI gal says. He hung the point down the right side and looped the narrow ends over the left shoulder. It's something easy to make, easy to copy, and you'll probably see it from Fifth Avenue to Main Street before Christmas, we hope. Usually European styles don't hit the racks for one to two years here. Examples: capes and chunk-styled shoes. I remember seeing them in Paris, France myself in 1966 but didn't really find them here until last year. See what I mean?

INSPIRED by America's moon exploration feat, the Daniele Sisters created this dress, the lines of which follow the shape of the astronauts' capsule, with a doughnut of fabric cutting in from wide hem and with an extra hem of jewelled beading. It was presented during showing of their fall-winter collection in Rome on July 23. (UPI CABLEPHOTO).

PRINCESS IRENE GALITZINE of Rome drapes about 10 feet of diagonally worked black and white fox fur — around shoulders and trailing to the ankle — about this sapphire blue tunic and trouser ensemble, which she presented during showing of her fall and winter collection on July 23. (UPI CABLEPHOTO).

GREGORIANA OF ROME offers a choice of a long evening gown (R) or a full-legged jumpsuit in brocade. The gown is trimmed with flowers outlined in mink. They were shown July 22 during the autumn-winter fashion parade in Rome. (UPI CABLEPHOTO).

Two Fields But Similar Image: Joe Liguori

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

KINGSTON

Professionally speaking, it would be difficult to find two more incongruous, yet compatible gentlemen, than restaurant proprietor-performer Joe Liguori and his new manager, Miron lumber official, Sam Greenspan.

How did a lumber company manager arrive at the status of handling the reins and guiding the course of an accomplished singer? Well, when the talented tenor is Joe Liguori, owner of Rosendale's popular year-old Liguori's Restaurant, who happens to be equally adept with saw and hammer, the situation ceases to be unusual. Add the fact that the other member of the duet happens to enjoy music, likes good food, and can provide an almost unlimited supply of lumber for Joe Liguori's construction hobby-turned business, and one might say the arrangement was forecast in the stars.

A Smash Hit

What began at Liguori's Restaurant with a friendly "How'd you like to be 'big time'?" is now mushrooming into a situation saturated with just such possibilities. Through Sam Greenspan's scores of connections in the mountain resort section of the area, the singer has completed an engagement at the Concord Hotel, Kiamesha Lake, and recently was termed a "smash" at Tamarack Lodge in Greenfield Park.

Special

A red-letter day in Joe Liguori's flourishing career will be Wednesday, July 30, when he opens at the Laurel Hotel and Country Club in Monticello.

Music has always been a prominent part of Joe Liguori's life. Biographically speaking, he studied music and voice privately for six years with Mrs. Louise Coselotti who also taught Maria Callas, and was granted the Marion Anderson Award for $1,000 toward a Julliard Scholarship at Juilliard School of Music where he studied for four years.

Throughout the years, he has appeared at various nightclubs all over the U. S. and recently completed an engagement at the Americana Hotel in Miami, Fla. His musical credits run the gamut from participation in summer stock productions Carousel, Brigadoon, Finian's Rainbow, performances at Tanglewood with Boston Pops Orchestra, and his own daily radio show, to opera workshop. He has given several benefit concerts throughout the country for United Cerebral Palsy, as well as 21 concerts for U. S. Information Service in 21 different colleges across the U. S.

Favorite Tenor

No newcomer to the television medium, he appeared several times on the Jack Paar Show—holds the distinction of being Paar's 'favorite tenor'—and performed with such celebrities as Greer Garson, Judy Garland, and Patrice Munsel, to name a few.

During his first year in business at Rosendale, he has played the congenial host, offering his restaurant clientele the novel treat of singing their vocal requests whether they be oldtime favorites, semi-classical compositions, or contemporary numbers. Equipped with a vast repertoire of songs and a powerful Robert Goulet-type voice, Joe Liguori likes nothing more than to oblige.

Undoubtedly, a most significant move in his singing career was achieved recently by the selection of George Siravo of Saugerties as his vocal arranger. Siravo's prolific record of past accomplishments include promotions for such well known theatrical personalities as Frank Sinatra, Tony Bennett, Jimmy Roselli, Richard Kiley, Doris Day, Barbara McNair along with arrangements at various motion picture studios. His 1964 National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences Award, a certificate presented in recognition of his nomination for best accompaniment arrangement of the Tony Bennett hit, "Who Can I Turn To," gives ample testimony of his prominence and technique.

Bright Future

The immediate future looks bright for Joe Liguori with bookings arranged next month at the Concord, and Hotel Brickman in South Fallsburg, and has endeared him to his clientele throughout the past year

Two Spacecraft Taking Some Photos of Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — While the nation celebrates the Apollo 11 moon mission triumph, two unmanned spacecraft, Mariner 6 and 7, are zipping toward Mars to give earth's television viewers another space spectacular.

Mariner 6 is expected to beam back pictures of Mars from 2,000 miles from the surface next Tuesday, images that will take 5½ minutes to travel the 6 million miles.

Mariner 7 is to start sending pictures back on Aug. 3. The pictures are expected to reveal new details of the planet.

A spokesman for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, part of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Thursday both Mariner missions are right on schedule.

Mars was televised by Mariner 4 in 1965, but NASA engineers promise pictures far higher in quality from Mariners 6 and 7 than was possible four years ago.

"The really important keys to our progress are the improvements in the spacecraft and the ground receiver. We have been able to increase transmitter power, raising the strength of the signal on its journey to earth," said Gerald M. Truzynski, NASA's associate administrator for tracking and data acquisition.

"On the ground, we have better design of the large antenna and microwave amplifier and receivers that go with them to provide much higher sensitivity and lower noise level.

"And the communications satellites permit the worldwide distribution of these signals as they are received back on earth," he said.

Since their launching, the Mariners have completed one experiment successfully. This was direct measurement in deep space of the sun's heat.

The Mariners have more experiments ahead of them, including the altitude, temperature and density of the inner and outer atmosphere of Mars and their chemical components.

THE ENVOYS — A trio from Rockaway, N. J., The Envoys will present a program of hymns, gospel songs and spirituals at the First Church of the Nazarene, Elmendorf Street and Wiltwyck Avenue, Sunday 10:45 a. m. The Rev. Thomas Younce, host pastor extends an invitation to the public to attend. The Envoys personnel includes Don Storms, manager and lead singer; Dallas Henry, pianist and baritone and Ron Kelly, tenor. The program ranges from old favorites to the new sound of now.

Notices of meetings, suppers and other events to be listed in this column should be sent to the City Editor, Kingston Daily Freeman as far in advance as possible.

Fish to Seek Advice On Anti-Smut Campaign

POUGHKEEPSIE — In his continuing battle against smut literature flooding the district, Rep. Hamilton Fish, Jr. reported today he is writing the sheriffs and district attorneys of the five-county 28th District, seeking their opinions and advice.

Congressman Fish, who has introduced legislation which would bar all smut mailings that could reach anyone under 18 years of age, stated today: "I have written the sheriffs and district attorneys to get their thoughts on the president's three-pronged proposal, which would attack smut mailings as an invasion of privacy."

Congressman Fish, who has been one of the leaders in Congress in the battle to control unsolicited smut mailing said: "I am seeking their advice and thoughts on this, as I am a strong believer of local intiative and the need for harmonious cooperation between local, state and federal authority."

The replies by the local law enforcement officials will be included in the Congressional Record, and submitted to the Judiciary Committee as part of the hearings which are scheduled to start shortly.

Stolen Auto Is Dumped

ROSENDALE — A 1969 car reported stolen in Kingston early today, was discovered shortly before 8 a .m. today by Town of Esopus Police Sergeant Joseph Feraca at the Town of Rosendale dump where the vehicle had been wrecked by fire.

Feraca said he was driving in the vicinity of the dump when he saw the burned automobile off Hickorybush Lane. He checked the vehicle and discovered it was a car that had been reported stolen on Abeel Street between midnight and 7 a. m.

The car belongs to Charles Price of 45 St. James Street, Kingston. Feraca said he was told by city police. The sergeant immediately notified Kingston authorities and detectives went to Rosendale to continue investigation.

Judge to Hear Arguments in Welfare Case

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — A three-judge federal panel will hear arguments in Rochester Aug. 15 on whether a newcomer to New York State can be denied welfare payments.

Mrs. Annie B. Crimes, mother of five children, claims she has been illegally denied welfare payments since she moved to Batavia April 22 from Alabama.

Mrs. Crimes, 34, maintains she cannot work because she suffered stab wounds of the chest and hands before leaving Alabama and is in need of medical assistance.

Mrs. Crimes, who is currently living with her brother and his wife and five children, was on the Alabama welfare rolls before moving.

At issue in the case is section 139 (A) of the New York State social services law which maintains that an individual can be denied welfare if he moves into the state specifically for welfare.

Judge John O. Henderson said Thursday he would serve on the special panel along with Judge Harold P. Burke of Rochester and Judge Sterry R. Waterman of the second circuit court of appeals in New York City.

Burke will hear arguments Monday on a request that he temporarily restrain New York from denying Mrs. Crimes welfare payments pending settlement of the case.

Henderson, in announcing the Aug. 15 date for arguments in the case, said a recent U. S. Supreme Court decision on welfare laws skirted the questions posed by the state statute.

City GOP Club Meets Monday

KINGSTON — Kingston City Republican Club will hold its monthly meeting Monday, July 28 at the VFW Hall, Delaware Avenue at 8 p.m.

Republican mayoral candidate James J. Tyrrell will be present to announce the winners of a trip to Bermuda for two.

Charges Filed Against Man After Police Chase, Accident

TOWN OF ULSTER — A 26 year old man, who sped away on Route 28 after being stopped by state troopers for speeding at about 2 a.m. today, was involved in an accident and later fled on foot but was apprehended by authorities in Port Ewen.

Carl E. Law, who said his home is in Montreal, Quebec, was subsequently charged with speeding 90 miles an hour in a 50-mile zone, unlicensed operation, leaving the scene of an accident, failure to comply with a police order, driving a car over a dividing space on the highway and reckless driving.

Troopers R. M. Malloy and Joseph Mikesh of the Kingston zone headquarters, arraigned the man before Kingston Town Justice Robert Ferrigan. Bail was fixed at $500 and hearing was adjourned. In lieu of bail, Law was committed to the county jail.

According to troopers, Malloy and Mikesh stopped a car owned by George Bresler of Mt. Kisco and operated by Law on Route 28. While a routine check of the vehicle was made, the motorist took off in the car.

At the traffic circle the pursued vehicle entered the dividing mall and caused extensive damage. The driver leaped from the car and fled on foot. He was later taken into custody in Port Ewen by Highland State Police.

Camp Rising Sun Children To Perform Mikado Tonight

RHINEBECK — An ambitious group of youngsters will perform Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado" tonight at Camp Rising Sun.

The proceeds will go to the Upper Dutchess Visiting Nurse Association.

Assistant Director Joe Liebey said that the boys had done a major production every summer for the past 40 years of the camp's existance. The boys hail from all over the world.

"The Mikado" has been done several times before, as well as "HMS Pinafore" and "Pirates of Penzance," also other Gilbert and Sullivan productions. Some Shakespeare plays have also been performed by the young teenage boys, who play both male and female roles in all productions. Last year's play was "The Birds," a classic Greek drama.

A dress rehearsal was held Wednesday evening, with all in the cast of 26 doing well.

Music director is Bob Manno, who is with the New York City Opera Chorus.

A strange and different "musical trio" will provide the accompaniment, including a piano, a bassoon and a violin. "We make do with what we have," said Lieby," and we just happened to have a pianist, a bassoonist and a violinist this year."

Another major event this summer at Camp Rising Sun will be Hudson Valley Youth Day, Aug. 10.

Persistence Pays

MANCHESTER, England (UPI)—Michael George persisted despite two nosebleeds Thursday night to break the British record for marathon piano playing. George, 24, established a record of 195 hours and 17 minutes. Aides rushed him ice packs to stop the nosebleeds.

Cincinnati Reds Shade Mets, 4-3 In 12

By United Press International

Tony Perez belted his 23rd home run of the season in the 12th inning Thursday night to lift the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets.

Perez' blast was the third Cincinnati homer of the game and helped reliever Pedro Ramos notch his fourth victory of the year in seven decisions. Tug McGraw gave up the homer to Perez and suffered his second loss in seven decisions.

Aaron's Homer

Hank Aaron's 535th major league homer snapped a tie and ignited a four-run seventh inning that carried the Atlanta Braves to a 9-6 triumph over the Montreal Expos.

Aaron's homer, his 25th of the season, came with a man aboard and broke a 5-5 tie. Orlando Cepeda capped the inning with another two-run homer. Aaron's homer moved him into fourth place in all-time homers, ahead of Jimmy Foxx and one behind Mickey Mantle.

Tony Gonzales also homered for the Braves in the slugfest while Mack Jones had a pair for the Expos and Rusty Staub and Jose Herrera hit one each.

Cards Win

Pitcher Nelson Briles won his own game with a run-scoring single in the seventh inning as the St. Louis Cardinals edged the San Francisco Giants 2-1.

Briles' single came with two out and scored Julian Javier, who had reached base on a forceout and moved to second on an infield out. The run gave Briles his 10th victory of the season and enabled him to beat Juan Marichal, who lost his fifth game in 18 decisions.

Denis Menke drove in four runs with a bases-loaded triple and a run-scoring single to lead the Houston Astros to a 7-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Don Wilson went the distance for the Astros to record his 11th victory against seven losses. He struck out 11 and was touched for eight hits, including a homer by Johnny Callison and a double and a single by Richie Allen, who was making his first appearance since June 24.

Pirates Score

Carl Taylor singled home Matty Alou in the 10th inning to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Alou doubled with one out off Gary Ross and Taylor poked a clean single to right to chase him home and hand Dock Ellis his seventh victory in 17 decisions. Willie Stargell and Richie Hebner homered for the Pirates.

In the National League's only day action, the Chicago Cubs scored four runs in the sixth inning and went on to defeat the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3.

Al Spangler's two-run double and a two-run single by Randy Hundley highlighted the big inning for the Cubs and helped lefty Ken Holtzman register his 12th victory in 17 decisions.

The Cubs' victory, coupled with the Mets' loss, enabled Chicago to boost its lead in the Eastern Division to 5 1-2 games over second place New York while the Dodgers' defeat dropped them two games behind the first place Braves in the Western Division race.

Lolich Beats Foe

By United Press International

The way he fired the ball Thusday night, Mickey Lolich may very well have seen only teammate Denny McLain at the plate.

More the pity for the mismatched Kansas City Royals as they were made the sacrificial victims of Lolich's ire. The Detroit southpaw took time out from his squabble with McLain to whiff 13 Kansas City batsmen and allow them only four hits in the Tigers' 3-1 victory.

Earlier in the day Lolich teed off on his fellow pitcher, saying, "McLain doesn't think about his friends or his teammates. All he thinks about is himself." Lolich poceeded to explain that Denny had left him and his wife stranded in Washington following Wednesday's All-Star game when McLain, a flying enthusiast, changed his destination from Detroit to somewhere in the South.

"When I asked him how we were supposed to get back to Detroit," Lolich continued, "all he said was, 'That's tough. That's your problem.'"

Lolich later made peace with McLain when the two met in the Detroit clubhouse as Mickey said, "Look, I was mad. I blew my stack. I'm sorry. Let's forget it." Lolich explained to newsmen, "I was mad yesterday, but I forget quickly. I'm too easy to get along with."

Kansas City had lot more trouble getting along with the talented lefthander, touching him for its only run in the fourth inning on singles by Paul Schaal and Bob Oliver and a sacrifice fly by Joe Foy. But the Tigers replied with homers from Wally Bunker, Don Wert and Tom Tresh and Lolich had his 14th victory of the year against only two losses.

The triumph boosted Detroit into second place in the American League's Eastern Division as Boston dropped to third following an 8-6 loss to Seattle. The Baltimore Orioles maintained an 11 1-2 game advantage over the Tigers by beating the Chicago White Sox 5-2 and in other games Oakland edged Washington 2-1, the New York Yankees turned back the California Angeles 3-1 and the Cleveland Indians squeezed past the Minnesota Twins 6-5.

Joe Pepitone, playing for the first time in five games after suffering a wrist injury, hit a two-run double in the thid inning when the Yankees scored all three of their runs against California. Jack Aker stretched his string of scoreless innings to 33 with 2 2-3 innings of hitless relief to preserve Stan Bahnsen's sixth victory.

Ken Harrelson belted two home runs and Lou Klimchock tripled home Tony Horton with the decisive run in the seventh inning as Cleveland fought from behind to edge the Twins. Harmon Killebrew hit his 29th homer of the year, driving in his 92nd and 93rd runs for Minnesota, but reliever Ron Law shut out the Twins over the final three innings to pick up his first major league victory.

Clay Receives Maximum

HOUSTON (UPI) — If it hadn't been for the black suit and blue-striped tie, one would think a character from a not-too-long-ago boxing legend had stepped out of the pages of history.

"I'm down to 220 from 230 pounds and I ran three miles in Memorial Park this morning," he said, and you half-expected him to crawl through the ropes and into the ring to defend his heavyweight championship of the world.

But this was Muhammed Ali the defendant and not Cassius Clay the boxer. And Clay's record in the court is far different than his undefeated record in the ring.

Clay suffered another setback in the legal world Thursday. He was sentenced to the maximum penalty for refusing to be inducted into the armed forces —five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

It was in this same Federal Court two years ago—before the same U.S. Dist. Judge Joe Ingraham—that Clay received exactly the same sentence for exactly the same offense.

Clay's chief attorney, Charles Morgan Jr. of Atlanta, said he would appeal.

"All that I can say is that I'm sticking to my religious beliefs," Clay told the judge when the sentence was read.

It was because of his Black Muslim beliefs that Clay was convicted of refusing induction in the first place. Clay contended he was a Black Muslim minister, but the court didn't see it that way.

Clay appealed all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court where the case was returned to Ingraham's court when the government admitted it eavesdropped on some of Clay's telephone conversations.

Ingraham found, however, the wiretaps were not used to convict Clay originally and so he was resentenced.

The tight-lipped Clay who left the courtroom was not the same free-talking Clay who entered it only minutes before.

He told of how he and his wife were expecting their second child in about four months, but his words betrayed what was really on his mind—the fact that he might really have to go to prison after all.

"I want a boy this time," he said. I hoped I could get a family started before I went to prison. They could be growing before I got out."

Hutton Park Wins Twice

Hutton Park whitewashed Forsyth Park twice, 7-0 and 1-0, while Block Park won over Hasbrouck twice, 5-2 and 11-9, in the city softball league.

Steve Ellsworth of Block Park hit the only home run in all four games played.

MILLION DOLLAR SMILE — Charley O. Finley, owner of the Oakland Athletics, wrote a check for $1 million as the purchase price for Catcher Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds after watching Bench play five innings and hit one homer in the All-Star Game in Washington Wednesday. Finley reportedly said he realized he could not buy the ballplayer now, but would give Cincinnati the check and consumate the deal during the trading period next winter. Reds General Manager Bob Howsam said that a deal was impossible at this time. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Who knows what evil lurks in the hearts of used cars?

A Volkswagen dealer knows.

He knows that a used car can be a thing of beauty on the outside and a mass of corruption on the inside.

By what extraordinary power has he been able to unlock these deep, dark secrets?

By something un-mysteriously called the VW 16-point inspection.

It takes him to parts of the car rarely traveled by used car dealers . . . the farthest reaches of the transmission . . . the wilds of the electrical system . . . the depths of the engine.

If he finds the car to be pure at heart, he rewards it with a sign that says "The dealer guarantees 100% to repair or replace the engine, transmission, rear axle, front axle assemblies, brake system, electrical system for 30 days or 1000 miles, whichever comes first."

Good can still triumph over evil.

Carol Mann Ties Susie Berning In First Round of LPGA

THE COMMITTEE — (L-R) Kay Bodgan, Ed Furgol, former U. S. Open Champion, Joan White and Joe Griebs, tournament director, check out the standings after the first day's play in the National Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship now under way at the Concord Hotel, Kiamesha Lake. Sullivan County Community General Hospital is benefitting from the tourney.

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Long-stemmed Carol Mann has an outspoken desire to win the $36,000 LPGA Championship and a secret that might help her do it.

"I'm working on some things that are helping me," said the gracious blonde who went into today's second round sharing a one-stroke lead with Susie Berning after each posted a three-under-par 70 Thursday.

"I'm sorry, I can't tell you what they are."

Whatever her secret is, it's been working. She won the Lady Carling at Danbury, Conn., last week and continued her blistering pace with a bogey-free 33-37 over the lake-laced, 6,306-yard, par 73 Concord Hotel golf course.

Betsy Rawls

Aging Betsy Rawls, a two-time LPGA winner, was next at 71, followed by Kathy Whitworth at 72, newly wed Murle Lindstrom Breer at 73 and Sandra Spuzich and little Marlene Hagge at 74. U.S. Open champion Donna Caponi posted a 76 and defending champion Sandra Post zoomed to 80.

This championship, the richest in women's golf, is the only major title Carol hasn't won in nine years as a pro.

"I've never even shared the lead before," she said. "Something always seems to happen to me. Last year I had to withdraw during the first round because of a muscle spasm. Maybe I'm jinxed."

Miss Mann, the second leading money winner with three victories and more than $22,000 this year, was troubled slightly by a muscle spasm in her shoulder on the back nine. She headed for her room in hopes a heating pad would solve the problem.

Late Finishers

Meanwhile, Mrs. Berning, one of the late finishers, was applying some heat of her own. The little blonde wielded a sizzling putter for just 30 putts in carding five birdies and just two bogeys on this snakelike course, which is regarded as one of the finest in the country.

Susie, the 1968 U.S. Open champion and winner of two tournaments this year, never has won this championship either but had a different reason for wanting to play well. It was her husband, Dale's 31st birthday.

The Concord course has been shortened since the Concord Open last summer when it played at 6,900 yards, par 77 and produced the highest scores in LPGA history. But the layout still lived up to its nickname "The Monster" for some of the girls in the record field of 63. There were 35 scores—in the low 80s.

The venerable Patty Berg, the game's grand dame, was pleased with her 77 and hopes to be among the low 40 finishers and ties after today's round who qualify for the final 36 holes.

She said of the course, "there's a little for the bear, a little for the bull, but nothing for the hog."

Snead Leads Open

MONTREAL (UPI) — Sam Snead is 57, old enough to have the "yips," the putting-stroke ailment that makes foot-long putts feel like long twisters, and can put a middle-aged golfer out of the tounament scene before his time.

Sam has had the 'yips," but it looks like he has them beaten. He had seven one-putt greens and never needed more than two putts as he shot a five-under-par 67 for a one-stroke first round lead in the Canadian Open which started here Thursday.

Sam has one stroke over Chick Evans, 31, who says he has never won anything of note before, and won $9,000 in 1968, his first year on the pro tour. Evans, who put on a strong finishing rush for a second nine 33 to give him his 68, is from Northbridge, Mass.

Seven golfers are bunched at 69, including Roberto de Vicenzo and Tony Jacklin, the recent British Open winner.

They are followed by eight grouped at two-under-par 70, and 15 at 71, including Doug Sanders, Tommy Aaron, who eagled the par 5 466-yard 18th, and defending Canadian Open champ Bob Charles.

Billy Casper, at 72, had a "very cold putter" which hurt his game even though he said he "hit the ball better than at any time during this year." Casper known as one of the game's top putters, had four three-putt greens.

Sam Snead, the old "Slammer" from White Sulphur Springs, Va., had no such problem.

"Power is important anytime," he said, but noted "the name of the game is control." He hit all but two greens, and controlled the putter with rare skill.

"Getting your tee shot in position on this course is a must," Snead said. He was never in serious trouble.

In the past few years he has at times used the pendulum style of putting, but he used the conventional stance Thursday.

He broke golf down into "two phases" after his round "driving and putt," and, as he said, "you drive for fun and putt for money."

Sam said he might use the unorthodox, but more steady and stable stance, "when things start to tighten up later on." He said "these kids knock in four-of-five footers like I do with six-inchers."

Pinegrove, measuring 36-36-72 for the 65th Canadian Open, is no monster, but it does play 7,031 yards for the tournament. Of the 152 starters, the low 70 and ties will go on over the weekend for the $125,000 purse, with $25,000 to the winner.

The Bear Is on the Prowl

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The ominous shadow of big Jack Nicklaus loomed over the shoulders of first-round leaders Bobby Mitchell and Terry Wilcox today going into the second round of the $125,000 American Golf Classic.

Mitchell and Wilcox, a couple of relative newcomers, carved out five-under-par 65s in the first round Thursday and spearheaded the most massive assault ever on the rugged south course at the Firestone Country Club.

In all, 27 broke par 70 on he gigantic course, a 7,180-yard layout called by the touring pros the most demanding they play. The previous record for sub-par rounds was 16.

But Mitchell and Wilcox were anything but secure and confident in their spot with the awesome Nicklaus just one stroke behind at 66.

Three at 67

Bert Greene, Tom Nieporte, Steve Reid and Ray Floyd were tied at 67.

"I'm not there yet," the powerful Nicklaus said. "But it's getting better.

"For the first time this year I feel I can make a putt and that's better than thinking you can't make anything.

"I'm driving better. My irons are spotty but better. I know I'm swinging better because I'm hitting them farther."

Nicklaus, along with Mitchell and Chi Chi Rodriguez, matched the course record 31 on the back nine but credited it all to his putting.

"I putted very well," said Nicklaus, making his first start in this country in a month," but I really didn't play all that well."

Big Jack, in a slump since the winter tour, had birdie putts of 20, 8, 13, 22 and 20 feet, reached a par 5 in 2 for another and bogeyed twice, once hitting a tree and missing the green the other time.

JACK NICKLAUS

Neither Mitchell nor Wilcox had played the course before this week but neither had major difficulties.

Mitchell, a 26-year-old from Danville, Va., on the tour 3½ years without a victory, spiced his round with a monster 60-foot birdie putt and had nine one-putt greens.

"I just played my regular game," he said. "I just went out there to try to play good. I didn't try any shortcuts."

The crewcut Wilcox, 30, who divides his time between the tour and his club job at the Siwanoy Country Club in Bronxville, N.Y., also is seeking his first tour victory.

He pitched in from 30 yards on the fourth hole, the first of three consecutive birdies, twice pitched inside of three feet, rolled in putts of 25 and 15 feet, for other birds, and had two bogies.

Palmer Struggles

Arnold Palmer struggled to a 75. He missei 10-foot putts on the first three holes, three-putted the fourth and fifth and took four to get down from the fringe at the sixth.

Frank Beard and Masters champ George Archer were in a big group at 68 with Dave Hill at 69. Lee Trevino, Orville Moody and Julius Boros had 71s.

Ashe Wins Match

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —The top-seeded players controlled Woodstock Thursday at the National Clay Courts Tennis Championships.

Number one seed Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., eliminated Tom Edlefsen of Fort Walton Beach, Fla., 6-4, 6-4.

And it went right on down the line that way.

Clark Graebner of New York, the number two seed, put down Patricio Cornejo of Chile, 6-3, 6-2.

Third-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., defeated Jaime Fillol of Chile, 6-4, 6-4. 1.

Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., seeded fourth, won over Louis Rouyer of France, 6-2, 6-

It went the same way among the top foreign players, as first-seeded Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia ousted Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif., in three sets, 4-6, 6-3 and 6-2.

Number three foreign seeded Mike Beliin of Canada beat Jim Osborne of Honolulu, 7-5, 6-4.

Meanwhile, Luis Ayala, a Chilean, now a teaching pro in Puerto Rico, was hoping to keep this momentum going against number-four foreign seeded Allen Stone of Australia. The results of that match await the outcome as it was still in progress.

The women's division went pretty much as expected with the exception of one upset—as first-seeded Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., easily beat Maria Ayala of Puerto Rico, 6-love, 6-love.

Number-two seeded Linda Tuero of Metairie, La., beat Louise Gonnerman of New York, 6-2, 6-1.

Number-one (foreign) seeded Lesley Bowrey of Australia defeated Emile Burrer of San Antonio, Tex., 6-1, 6-4.

The only upset in the women's division occurred when Florella Bonicelli of Peru up-ended fourth seeded American Valerie Ziegenfuss of San Diego, Calif., 8-6, 6-1.

Earlier in the day, before play was rained out, sixth-seeded American Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico downed Bill Bowery of Australia, but had to go three sets to do it, 3-6, 6-4, and 6-2.

Bowery was the second-seeded foreigner.

Swimming Meet Set Monday

KINGSTON

The Kingston Recreation Department will hold its second annual swim meet at the Kingston Point Beach Swimming Pool at 1:30 p.m., Monday, July 28.

This years' age-group swim meet is a streamlined affair, with the number of categories and swimming distances cut in half. Last year there were six "age-groups." This year there are three. Last year the events were the 50 Yard Freestyle and 100 Yard Freestyle. This year the distances have been cut to 25 and 50 Yards.

The "age-groups" this year are: Boys and Girls Ages 5-10; Boys and Girls Ages 11-14; and Boys and Girls Open. Open means that any age boy or girl 5 to 18 may participate. Application forms may be picked up at any playground in the City or in the Recreation Office in the Muncipal Auditorium.

Activities Director Ron Gabriele commented that the reason for cutting everything in half this year is because of the large number of entries in last years meet. So many swimmers participated last year that it took almost six hours to run off the swim meet.

Pride Runs Saturday

MONTICELLO

With the great Nevele Pride scheduled to make an assault on the world half-mile track trotting record here Saturday, Monticello Raceway officials are keeping their fingers crossed for a break in the weather.

Rain has fallen in Sullivan County for four of the last five days and this does little in helping to get the track into top condition.

Nevele Pride's record attempt is slated to take place Saturday afternoon when the Mighty M stages its second of five day-night doubleheaders this season.

The Nevele Acres and Louis Resnick-owned four-year-old, who already carved out a new world's record on a five-eighths-mile oval this year, will be driven by his regular chauffeur and trainer, Stanley Dancer.

And Dancer, despite last Saturday's poor fourth place finish by Nevele Pride in the $71,833 American National Maturity Trot at Chicago's Sportsman's Park, was confident of a good performance Saturday if conditions are right.

"We're going to give it a go," he said earlier this week from his New Egypt, N.J. training base, indicating that Nevele Pride came out of the Chicago race in good shape.

Snow Speed, the Castleton Farm's speedster who upset Nevele Pride for the fourth time in their careers Saturday, will not be on hand for Monticello's $22,000 estimated Founders' Cup Trot.

But such other outstanding four-year-old trotters are as Dart Hanover, Master Yankee, Daring Speed, Sharp Volo, Fine Shot, Uncle Richard and Kerry Pride are among the likely challengers.

Monticello's afternoon program will get underway at 2:30, with the evening races starting at the usual 9:05. In between the programs ,the track will show movies of last year's Super Bowl and American Football League championship games and an art auction has been scheduled for the third floor Todd Gallery.

Most important, however, is the weather, which will hold the key to Nevele Pride's crack at the world's record.

Anti-noise. Anti-boil. Anti-antifreeze.

Water-cooled engines are quieter than air-cooled engines (Anti-noise). But in the ordinary water-cooled engine the water and anti-freeze frequently overflow. The Renault 10 has an expansion tank which prevents overflow (Anti-boil). So you won't have to add anything (Anti-antifreeze). However, we do recommend that you check it every 18 months.

Another good point is that water heats more evenly than air, which enables the water-cooled engine to operate more efficiently. And when an engine operates efficiently, it burns less gas. (The Renault 10 gets an honest 35 m.p.h.)

State All-Stars Set for Soccer Tilt

By MORT LAFFIN

MORGAN HILL Head Coach Ingo Froehlich puts his Upper New York State All-Stars to the test Sunday at the Oehler's Mountain Lodge field against the All-Stars of New York City in the first soccer match of its type ever staged on this field.

Froehlich, public relations director for the Kingston Soccer Club, has taken over the reins of the first All-Star team ever assembled in the Up-State area The game will begin at 2:30 p.m.

Travel distances and lack of funds had made such a team an impossibility before. However, through the efforts of the Otto Hild, of the Schenectady Football Club, and other area enthusiasts, the team is now a reality.

The team, under Froehlich's direction, will leave for a tour of Europe August 3 and will return to the United States September 3. Most of the games will be played in West Germany. The stars will be facing a tough, six-game schedule in Germany and Italy.

Five members of the Kingston Soccer club will be on the all-star squad. They are Reiner Schwebel, Klaus Weber, Eugene Ventriglia, Winfried Soddemann and Elliot Pobbie Asare.

They will be joined by Arnie Moan, Schenectady; Hans Papenfuss, Rochester; Guenther Schwann, Rochester; Peter Knapp, Rochester; Franz Sauer, Rochester; Francis Simms, Rochester; Kevin Simms, Rochester, Harald Dorndorfer, Rochester; Walter Piepke, Buffalo and Henry Heberling, also of Buffalo.

The City Stars have made quite a name for themselves over the years by defeating several of the high-ranking teams in the United States and Europe.

One of the greatest soccer games ever played involved the All-Stars and Eintracht of Frankfort, West Germany.

Trailing 5-1 at halftime, the stars came roaring back with a display of scoring fireworks, the likes of which had never been seen before and never equalled. New York won the game, 6-5, in what has to be termed "a miracle".

New York City's team reached the high point of its existence in 1965, when hopelessly outclassed, at least on paper, they posted five straight victories against the best teams from the U.S. and Europe to win the International Soccer Tournament at Randalls Island.

Uwe Schwart, all-star goalie who played in Kingston's tourney last Sunday, won the Eisenhower Trophy as the event's most valuable player. At that time, the team was coached by Johann Herberger. It is now in the capable hands of John Quillman, who is also the coach of the New York Hungarian team.

Allie Sherman Is Stern Taskmaster

(By The Associated Press)

Coach Vince Lombardi of the Washington Redskins is supposed to be running as tough a training camp as there is in pro football. Little attention has been paid to Allie Sherman, but the coach of the New York Giants is a stern taskmaster, too.

Sherman, determined to bring the Giants back to their once lofty status, uses what some call a modified version of a guillotine. That's because it is supposed to let a coach know who's willing to put his neck on the line.

The so-called guillotine consists of two blocking dummies about four feet apart. A defensive man stands between them on one side. On the other side is a ball carrier and a blocker.

When the runner gets the ball he drives straight ahead between the dummies. He is not allowed to go around them. The resulting collision between the linemen and the ball carrier has helped Sherman weed out a lot of candidates in a hurry.

"Allie's not kidding," said one player. "He's letting us know that if we don't shape up he's going to get rid of us."

With the first preseason exhibition games only a week off, the San Diego Chargers and New Orleans Saints engaged in a two-hour scrimmage at Irvine, Calif., Thursday. The Chargers scored three touchdowns, the Saints none.

Gene Foster scored two of the San Diego touchdowns on runs of 31 and 25 yards. Rookie quarterback Marty Domres passed 69 yards to Jacque MacKinnon for the other TD.

The running of halfback Frank Quayle impressed Coach Lou Saban as the Denver Bronco rookies scrimmaged for the second straight day in preparation for their game with the Kansas City Chiefs Saturday night.

The Chiefs said they would start Mike Livingston at quarterback with Ben Hart and Maurice LeBlanc as the running backs in the so-called Grocery Bowl exhibition against the Broncos.

Graham Gets Team Ready For Game With Jets

CHICAGO (UPI) — Memo to the New York Jets: The College All Stars will be running outside the tackles Aug. 1.

The Stars have only six offensive linemen for four guard and tackle spots and only two of them are guards.

Coach Otto Graham of the Stars said Thursday his chief problem is offensive line depth in preparing the collegians for their Soldier Field date with Joe Namath and Company.

"There are six or eight holdouts and their absence hurts us. We invited four offensive guards to camp and two showed up.

"So we had to teach the tackles some things about playing guard and we have only six offensive linemen for the four spots. So if we get a couple of players hurt in practice or in the game, we're going to be hurt badly," Graham said.

Despite the lack of bench muscle, however, Graham is high on the quality supplied him by the campuses this year.

"I'd like to take this squad into either pro football league and inside of a year we'd be champions or challenging for the championship. If we get a few lucky bounces (in the clash with the Jets) we could surprise everybody," Graham said.

"Terry Hanratty (Notre Dame) and Greg Cook (Cincinnati) have shown me they can pass, and Bobby Douglass (Kansas) could help, but he throws a heavy ball. Then we've got receivers who have good hands and good speed," he said, mentioning Notre Dame's Jim Seymour, Southern Methodist's Jerry Levias and Stanford's Gene Washington.

Tucker Frederickson Suffers Knee Injury

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (UPI)— Running backs Tucker Frederickson and John Fuqqua both suffered leg injuries Thursday in a workout before the New York Giants ran through their first full scrimmage.

Frederickson, a veteran who has had two knee operations, suffered a pulled tendon behind his right knee, and Fuqua, a rookie from Morgan State, pulled the hamstring muscle in his left leg. Both will be out of action several days.

Clark Miller, who came to the Giants from the San Francisco Forty Niners in an off-season trade, was the bright spot in the scrimmage. Miller played only 10 games last season and had a knee operation, but he intercepted a screen pass and worked almost the entire scrimmage.

Coach Allie Sherman also called attention to the performance of quarterback Milt Plum, obtained from the Los Angeles Rams earlier in the week to lend support to the passing game of Fran Tarkenton and Gary Wood. Other offensive players singled out were running back Ron Blye and Freeman White, switched to tight end this year from linebacker.

50 Club Plays Dizzy Dames

The "50" Club of Kingston will play their first softball game of the year against a local unbeaten girls team called the Dizzy Dames. The game is scheduled for Block Park on Saturday, July 26th at 7:30 p.m.

President Tom "Fuzz" Coughlin has requested all "50" Club members to attend the game and root for their fellow members. Secret practice sessions have already been held and it appears the following members will be in condition to play. Tibor Tomshaw, Fuzz Coughlin, Dick Inge, Don Slater, Ralph Donnelly, Frank Sass, Bernard Donnelly, Also Tony North, Harold White, John Smith, Jack Reynolds, Jack Sass ,Joe Schoonmaker, Jitters Donnelly, Jerry Schatzel, Bob Bowers, Jim Longendyke and the Ace clutch hitter on the team Tom Kearney. Other members are working out and hope to be in shape by game time.

The Dizzy Dames have played serveral games this year and are undefeated in competition with other girls teams. This is their first attempt at playing an all male team. Rosemary Pillsworth is the mainstay on the team and is noted for her hitting ability.

Milano Gains Victory Over Knight's Ferraro

KINGSTON Two Jim's turned in superb performances in the Babe Ruth baseball league. Jim Milano of the Elks getting the win as he allowed only one hit and one run, while striking out seven and walking the same. Jim Ferraro took the loss, but allowed only two hits and two runs, while striking out six and walking four. Elks 2, Knights 1, was the final score.

The Elks scored the winning run in the bottom of the sixth when Pete Mercier stroked a pinch-hit single to the outfield to start things off. Mercier then stole second. Ferraro then walked the next two batters loading the bases with no outs.

Ferraro got Don Smith on a short fly to center, with all runners holding. John Longendyke then struckout. Steve VanKleeck who had already worked Ferraro for a base hit and walk came to bat with two out. VanKleeck forced the winning run home by working Ferraro for another base on balls.

Dirk Hoffstatter had the only K of C hit in the second inning.

In other action Chidsey-DeForest trounced Miron 9-1. Kim Nichols led all hitters with a double and two singles. Joe Fay picked up the win as he allowed only two singles, while striking out four and walking the same. Dennis Rapp was tagged with the loss. Jim Gallagher collected both of Miron's hits.

Samuels On Visit Upstate

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI) — Howad J. Samuels, the upstater who moved downstate to build a stronger political base, is back upstate on a fence - mending visit with local Democratic officials.

The Canandaigua millionaire was his party's candidate for lieutenant governor three years ago. He moved to New York City following the 1966 election loss to build support in the heavily Democratic metropolis — presumably for a try at the governorship in 1970.

But Samuels' statement earlier this month endorsing Mayor John V. Lindsay over Democrat Mario A. Procaccino has stirred criticism from both up and downstate Democratic leaders. Many say the endorsement has hurt Samuels' chances for the party's gubernatorial nod.

Samuels met with newsmen in Albany and Syracuse Thursday, explaining his position on the endorsement in broadcast interviews over WROW and WSYR.

"Go back to Canandaigua and keep your mouth shut," was the advice Samuels said he received from upstate party leaders after advising them of his move to back Lindsay.

"I'm not deserting my party," he said. "I frankly think Mario Procaccino is deserting my party — at least in terms of what he stands for."

Samuels repeated his desire to seek the state's highest elective office in 1970, but admittd his support of Lindsay might hurt his campaign. A final decision on whether to seek the nomination, he said, will be made in December.

Samuels ruled out the possibility he would seek the seat now held by Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y. There are already enough potential office seekers for the Democratic senatorial nod, he said.

'Y' Day Camp Carnival Scheduled for Saturday

The program begins at 1:30 p.m. with the opening of 15 booths. The Midget play, entitled It's A Small World will begin at 2 p.m. A swim demonstration will begin at 3 p.m. and will be followed by a free swim for campers and their families.

The money raised by the carnival will be used to help YMCA camps and programs in foreign lands.

Saturday also will provide parents with an opportunity to see the camp in action.

The Kingston and Ulster County YMCA is a member of the Community Chest.

The newly formed Sing Out Saugerties Group will hold its second rehearsal tonight at 7 at Trinity Episcopal Church Parish Hall, Barclay Heights.

At this session members of the group are expected to choose a nucleus group to govern the body.

The Sing Out unit is planning to become a part of the Up With People Group and is currently seeking a music director. Nearly 60 young people attended last week's meeting. The Seventh Grade through college level was established as the age limit.

Upstate Man Flies Kite, Is Electrocuted

PULASKI, N.Y. (UPI)— The body of an Oswego County man, apparently electrocuted while flying a kite, was found Thursday in a field near his Constantia home.

Benjamin Brooks, 20, had assembled the kite for his 15 year old brother, Howard, on Wednesday and apparently decided to test it. His family became concerned when he did not return home and began searching for him Thursday morning.

State police speculated that the kite touched a 4,100 volt high tension wire and the electricity was conducted to Brooks by the copper wire he was using as a kite string.

Brooks' father is employed by General Electric Company at Syracuse. The family resides at Simons Drive.

Contract Signed To Build Pools

HURLEY

A $28,000 contract was signed Thursday between the Hurley Recreation Park and Northeastern Pool Builders of the Albany area for the construction of two pools at the new park.

Park president Jack Jordan said the contract is for a 35 x 75 foot swimming pool and a 20 x 40 foot wading pool. Construction is expected to begin by mid-August, he said.

The Park has signed a contract with the Farmers' Home Administration for a $50,000 loan for park construction this week and officials expect the area to be open by next summer.

SHORT OF FUNDS

It took between 14 and 16 years for the actual construction of the Washington Monument. However, 36 years elapsed between the laying of the cornerstone and the dedication because of the lack of funds.

Canfield Fire, Bench Burns

KINGSTON

Firemen were dispatched to a tin work shop occupied by Canfield Machine and Tool Works on Dedrick Street at 6:34 a. m. today after a workman reported a fire in the building.

On arrival firefighters in command of Capt. Robert Schatzel found a blaze on a work bench. The fire was quelled with pressurized water. Damage was confined to the bench, a door frame, and tools.

It was noted that the probable cause of the fire was a hot soldering iron that had been left on the bench.

THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN

Introducing a Used Car Guarantee It Doesn't Come With Every Car

It's a 100% guarantee. Not one of those "we-pay-half-you-pay-half deals."

And it comes only with used cars that pass the Volkswagen 16 point Safety and performance test.

This is how it works. When we get a car as a trade-in, we give it the inspection. Check it out completely. If it passes, we tune up, tighten, repair or replace everything that needs tuning up, tightening, repairing or replacing.

Then we guarantee it 100% repair or replacement of all major mechanical parts* for 30 days or 1000 miles.

What kind of cars get our guarantees? All kinds. Chevys. Fords. Ramblers. VWs. (We get all kinds of trade-ins for new Volkswagens.)

So. The next time somebody tries to sell you a used car that's "just like new," ask about the guarantee. Then remember us.

No, our used cars aren't "just like new". No used car can be. But no used cars could be in better shape, either.

Dear Abby

Don't Mix Law, Zodiac

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a Taurus (born April 24) and I am very much in love with a Scorpio (born Oct. 26).

First, let me explain that before I knew anything about the zodiac, I foolishly married a Sagittarius, so our marriage was doomed from the start.

My Scorpio married an Aries (an impossible union). They would have made excellent business partners, but their temperments were all wrong for marriage.

Anyway, my Scorpio has left his Aries, but I can't get rid of my Sagittarius. I'd divorce him but I have no grounds, and he won't divorce me, altho he has all the grounds he needs.

My horoscope says I should make no important decisions of the heart until after the first of next year but I just can't see spending another Christmas with this miserable man.

My lawyer says that HE (my husband) should be the one to move out, but my husband says he is happy here and if I'm unhappy I should do the moving. There is a lot at stake (financially) and I don't want to spoil everything. Can you help me?

TAURUS

DEAR TAURUS: Being a "Moon Child" myself (July 4) I hesitate to meddle in areas which I know nothing. Namely, law and the zodiac. Take your cues from your lawyer, lady, and quit star-gazing.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I need an unbiased opinion on something. I drove over to my husband's office one night. He has a bedroom there for when he stays in town. Much to my surprise his ex-wife was there! They were in the bedroom with the lights off because he hates her so much he couldn't stand to look at her face.

There is a desk and two chairs for conversation so it wasn't necessary for them to be in the bedroom.

First, would you believe they were only talking? Second, would there be a reasonable doubt in your mind?

ROSITA

DEAR ROSITA: First, no! Second, si!

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am about to lose my mind. My father is 73 years old, retired, has no financial worries, and he lives alone in a very nice, modern home. My problem is in getting someone to keep house for him.

They quit him one after another. The last one (a very unattractive, common woman in her middle sixties) was an excellent housekeeper, and I paid her double what she could get anywhere else, and she quit after one week!

When I asked her why, she said she'd rather not say, but she did agree to clean for him daily if I would come over and stay in the house with her, or if my father would get OUT of the house, but she wouldn't stay alone in the house with him.

Now, Abby, I cannot imagine my father making improper advances to her, or any of these other housekeepers, but what else am I to think?

What would you do if you were in my shoes?

HIS DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: I would get my father to a doctor for an examination from the neck both ways and try to determine the condition of his mind. And in the meantime, I would try to line up a male domestic.

Horoscope — By SIDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JULY 26, 1969

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Co-operation from usual quarters could be lacking. Be a self-starter. Ask questions, obtain answers. Reject the superficial. Someone has underestimated property value.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Light touch, diplomatic approach is best today. Mend fences on home front. Family member expresses disagreement on basic issue. Key is to be reasonable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You could spend more than anticipated. Get budget in order — stick to it. Don't fool yourself by thinking you can delay paying the piper. You get exactly nothing for nothing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Avoid committing yourself to long-range program. Key is to study various possibilities. Be aware of property potential. Your judgment in these matters is excellent today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stick to familiar areas. You are not ready today for startling innovations. Realize this and respond accordingly. Best to finish rather than to begin project.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Some of your romantic illusions are subject to revision. Be selfish in the sense that you are not used. Get money's worth. And set high value on your contributions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Expansion is key today. What was will not remain stable. Status quo goes by the wayside. Be prepared for what could be major opportunity. Keep communication lines open.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You want to do much, but there are limitations. Know this and play accordingly. Don't try to do everything at once. Specifically, you strive to get quiet individual to commit himself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid extravagance. You can entertain without throwing budget overboard. Simplicity, sincerity are twin allies. Set goal, purpose. Then follow through in methodical manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An individual in authority could act in irriatable manner. Don't compound error. Be understanding. Cycle is high. Eventually you get what you need.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Soft-sell approach gets best results today. Diplomacy is a necessity. Look beyond immediate indications. A favor by you will be more than repaid.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Some friends may be involved in dispute. Don't fool yourself into taking sides. Best to be neutral. If you are, you ultimately gain respect. Be perceptive. Watch for ulterior motives.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have natural executive ability; you're fascinated with law. You are a showman and very creative. You get opportunity to dig in and build business or special project.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

3 IN THE RING: (Q.) My mother and father have little fights regularly. Sometimes the fights are big ones.

My father is sensible and keeps quiet as long as he can, but my mother likes to humiliate him. She eggs him on until he hollers at her. The minute he does, she accuses him of shouting too loud and starting a fight. Or she may just let out a wail and leave him feeling guilty.

As soon as I say one thing in my father's favor, she starts yelling at me, too. And she makes me pay for it later by giving me a hard time.

This has been going on ever since I was a little girl and could barely understand what they were saying to each other. My mother keeps trying to get me to take her side, but I won't, because that would be hypocritical.—J. in Connecticut.

(A.) All parents—even the happiest ones—have disagreements. My advice is for you to stay out of your parents' fights.

When a storm starts brewing, make yourself scarce. Your father has had a lot of experience and I believe he can take care of himself.

I honestly regret that you have to put up with all this. But you will make life easier for yourself by not jumping into the fights or being pulled into them.

COLOR CUE: (Q.) I'm 13½ and need to know the name of a brand of lashes that are not too long. I do not like them too dark either.

Am I old enough to lighten my hair?—E. in Michigan.

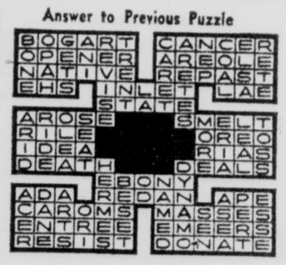

(A.) Thirteen and a half is too young for false eyelashes and fake haircoloring.

Boys your age prefer the natural look. For that matter, so do older boys.

Today's hand was concocted by George S. Coffin of Waltham, Mass., over 30 years ago.

When the hand was supposed to have been played, East won the club with the queen and shifted to a trump. South won that trick, cashed dummy's ace of clubs, played three rounds of hearts to make sure that West was out of that suit, and threw West in with the ace of diamonds. West was down to diamonds and had to give declarer a ruff in dummy and discard of his jack of clubs.

West bet that if East had led back a diamond at trick two the contract would have been beaten but declarer could still make it by a Vienna Coup. He would simply take dummy's ace of clubs and run off all his trumps. On the last trump, East would be squeezed in hearts and clubs.

West's third try to beat the hand was to cash his ace of diamonds and shift to the queen of hearts. This would break up both the Vienna Coup and the diamond end play but declarer would still have a way to make 11 tricks.

Here it is: He wins the heart with his king, leads a heart to the ace, ruffs a heart high, leads a trump to the nine, ruffs the last heart high, leads a trump to dummy's seven and leads a low club from dummy. East wins with the king or queen and is end-played.

A similar type end-play is developed if West opens the queen of hearts. South eliminates hearts in the same manner and throws West in with the ace of diamonds. He leads a club and South lets it ride to East.

TV and the World Journey

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—President Nixon's around-the-world trip, including his historic visit to Communist Romania next week, will get extended special coverage from the television networks.

Nixon left for the Pacific Wednesday to be on hand for astronauts on their return from the moon today.

After that, the apparent highlight of his journey will be his visit to the Romanian city of Bucharest—the first personal call on a Communist citadel by a president of the United States since World War II. And at least one network, NBC-TV, has announced it will broadcast live coverage—via satellite — from Bucharest, Aug. 2 and 3.

Live Broadcast

This Friday night—actually early Saturday morning in parts of the nation—there will be a live broadcast, announced by NBC-TV, of Nixon's arrival in Manila. The scheduled time is from 12:30 to 1:30 a.m. EDT.

On Sunday, CBS-TV will present a half-hour report at 7:30 p.m. EDT about the Chief Executive's Jakarta sojourn.

Tuesday, there will be a 30-minute CBS-TV program focusing on Nixon's Bangkok trip. This broadcast will be seen at 10 p.m. EDT in some areas, and at 10:30 p.m. EDT in others.

Next Thursday, meanwhile, ABC-TV will contribute an hour report on President Nixon's trip, at 10 p.m. EDT.

And a week from Friday—that is, on Aug. 1—there will be a 30-minute CBS-TV program, at 11:30 p.m. EDT, on Nixon's arrivals in New Delhi and Lahore.

90-Minute Broadcast

On Saturday, Aug. 2, NBC-TV's live satellite coverage of the President's visit to Bucharest will be broadcast for 90 minutes, starting at 6 a.m. EDT. It will include his meeting with the Romanian president and scenes of the motorcade from the airport.

The night of Aug. 2, CBS-TV will have an hour report on the Bucharest trip, beginning at 7:30 p.m. EDT.

The morning of Sunday, Aug. 3, NBC-TV will present an hour of live coverage of Nixon's departure from Bucharest, including the motorcade to the airport and farewell ceremonies. This broadcast will start at 8:30 a.m. EDT.

The night of Aug. 3, there will be live network coverage of the President's arrival home at Andrews Air Force Base, at 10 p.m. EDT.

2 Units Leaving Viet, Area Man Heads One

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. Comand today tapped two of its most decorated units from the Mekong Delta—with a total of 550 GIs—as the next American outfits to be sent home under President Nixon's withdrawal plan.

U.S. headquarters in Saigon today said North Vietnamese antiaircraft gunners shot down an Army helicopter within sight of Cambodia Thursday, killing all seven Americans and two South Vietnamese aboard. It was on of the costliest 'copter losses in the current battle lull, now approaching its sixth week, and brought to 1,240 the number of American helicopters shot down in South Vietnam during the war.

The two are the 3rd Battalion of the 34th Artillery and the 1097th Transportation Company, elements of the U.S. 9th Iinfantry Division which arrived in Vietnam in October of 1966.

The same headquarters announcement listed light ground fighting from Thursday, with 20 Viet Cong or North Vietnamese soldiers reported killed in scattered fighting.

Overnight, guerrilla gunners shelled 11 Allied targets, causing light losses, and a bus hit a mine 68 miles southwest of Saigon, killing two South Vietnamese soldiers and 11 civilians, spokesmen said.

Both home-bound outfits were instrumental in pioneering riverine warfare in the water Mekong Delta—a tactic that put both infantrymen and artillery on boats on the delta's canals and rivers.

The artillery battalion, commanded by Maj. Walter Bryde Jr., of Newburgh, N.Y., has received the Presidential Unit Citation for its performance, along with the Vietnamese Gallantry Cross.

Three meritorious Unit Citations have been awarded the Transportation Company, a boat outfit now under the command of Capt. John E. Henry of Ellenwood, Ga.

The continuing lull in ground fighting had no effect on U.S. bombing operations, with headquarters reporting eight overnight B52 strikes against suspected areas of guerrilla activity.

Soviet Aids POW Parcels

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Soviet Union is facilitating the shipment of parcels to U.S. prisoners of war in North Vietnam, State Department officials said today.

Officials said the parcels, posted at local U.S. Post Offices, would be collected at several large receiving points and shipped to Moscow. Then the parcels will be airlifted by Soviet aircraft to Hanoi.

U.S. officials, however, still are disturbed over North Vietnam's continuing refusal to list the prisoners it is holding and its unwillingness to permit all prisoners to correspond with their families.

The Nixon administration has been pondering how it might get Hanoi to ease the conditions of the U.S. prisoners, while at the same time it has been making a renewed effort to reassure families and relatives that the United States is doing all it can.

The State Department appealed to Hanoi to ease the anxiety of U.S. families by permitting regular correspondence.

He said that as the result of a Hanoi announcement July 3, U.S. families have been told they may send gifts to their relatives who are believed to be held prisoners.

The officials were reluctant to attach political significance to the action of the Soviet Union, which has been providing North Vietnam up to an estimated $1 billion worth of aid annually.

U.S. officials said the shipment of the parcels to Moscow was a routine operation of existing international postal services.

The State Department said that it has received no indication of when Hanoi would release three unidentified U.S. military prisoners whom it has promised to free in connection with the July 4 Independence Day.

A delegation of peace activists headed by Rennie Davis of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, now is in Hanoi making preparations for the release of the prisoners.

Troop Reduction Slash May Speed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The New White House-ordered slash in defense spending may speed reduction in the size of U.S. military forces, Pentagon sources indicate.

These sources also suggested a continued slowdown in Vietnam fighting could help the Nixon administration cut spending for ammunition, B52 bomber missions and other war-related purposes.

President Nixon has directed federal agencies to come up with further spending reductions totaling $3.5 billion, and Budget Bureau officials forecast the Pentagon will absorb more than half the amount.

Defense authorities, who earlier pared $1.7 billion from the Johnson administration's $79 billion farewell military budget, anticipated the new White House order and had been searching for places to cut deeper.

"We're going to have to squeeze hard on personnel," said one official.

New U.S. withdrawals from Vietnam, expected late this summer and fall, probably will be translated into total force levels well below the 3.45 million men projected in the budget now before Congress.

The first troop pullouts from Vietnam, now under way, will result in a 15,000-man drop in over-all Army strength and save about $150 million a year.

For each additional man cut from the military rolls, the Pentagon figures to save about $10,000 a year.

Looking beyond the war, defense leaders have been thinking of lowering U.S. armed strength gradually to around 2.6 million men, thus reaping a saving of about $8 billion a year.

The Defense Department's civilian force also is a likely target for more trimming beneath the level of 1,215,000 now planned for the coming year.

The Nixon administration in April moved to lop 20,000 civilian workers from the payroll at an anticipated annual saving of about $70 million. That cut probably will be deepened.

Officials hinted that, if the level of fighting stays low, they may be able to trim the more than $4 billion in the budget for ground, air and naval ammunition.

Shortly after coming to office, the Nixon administration sliced more than $900 million from the Johnson administration's ammunition request.

The number of B52 sorties is due to slide from about 1,800 to about 1,600 a month, and a continued lull could bring an additional cutback in B52 bomber operations in Southeast Asia.

At $50,000 a sortie, the administration could save more than $100 million a year with a further reduction of 200 such flights a month. A sortie is a single flight by a single plane.

Some military weapons projects are considered vulnerable to stretchout or cancellation under the intensifying budget squeeze.

Among these are the much-criticized West German-U.S. development of a main battle tank for the 1970s, a new F14 fighter plane for the Navy and another nuclear-powered aircraft carrier.

Israeli Planes Hit Anew

By United Press International

Israeli fighter-bombers today attacked Egyptian artillery positions at each end of the Suez Canal in the fourth Israeli strike into Egypt in six days. A spokesman in Tel Aviv said there was no opposition from the Egyptian air force.

Israeli planes also struck Jordanian artillery positions in the northern Jordan Valley, hitting targets which had shelled Israeli positions across the river for the past 24 hours, a spokesman said.

The Israeli spokesman said the planes attacked at 1 p.m. after Egyptian artillery had shelled Israeli ground positions on the east bank of the canal and in the Sinai Desert for three hours. He said all planes returned safety despite antiaircraft fire.

The attack was mounted after one Israeli soldier was wounded in the morning shelling.

The air strikes followed an eight-hour battle Thursday in which each side used artillery and planes. Israel said it shot down seven Egyptian planes. President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt said he sent 40 planes against Israel and that they shot down seven Israeli planes.

Authorities Seek Woman, Kidnaped Girl Found Safe

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Twenty - three - month - old Patricia Ann Martin has returned safe and sound to her home in the city's West Side after being held for two days by an unknown kidnaper.

Patricia Ann was found Thursday wandering alone on a residential street in the exclusive Lake Ontario resort community of Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., about 25 miles north of this city.

She was in good condition, her mother said, except that she had bruises on her buttocks and arms, and her hair had been trimmed in a boyish cut.

"I'm glad they only cut her hair, because that can grow back," Mrs. Murray Martin sobbed to reporters when her reunited family arrived at a relatives small home in the older section of the city.

The Martins were rushed to the early-American resort community of about 3,000 after Mrs. John Ghetti, of Queenston, Ont., brought the toddler to police headquarters. Patricia was alone and no one in the area knew her, Mrs. Ghetti told Chief Constable John Laurie.

Laurie recognized the girl as the one kidnaped in Buffalo and called the FBI.

Mrs. Ghetti said she was driving to her home about 15 miles south of Niagara-on-the-Lake with her own children when she came upon Patricia.

Patricia's parents, who are Mohawk Indians, hugged and kissed their daughter when they arrived at Laurie's home where the infant was taken until their arrival.

"Wonderful, wonderful," were the only words the father could utter after the 48-hour ordeal.

Canadian and American police, relieved over the reunion, concentrated their efforts on finding the heavy - set woman who was believed to have kidnaped Patricia Tuesday.

A force of nearly 20 Ontario Provincial Police and Town of Niagara Constables virtually sealed off an area as large as 20 miles around Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Meanwhile, an all-points bulletin for the unknown woman was maintained in the U.S.

That was the automobile Patricia's eight - year - old sister Shellie described to police as the one the kidnaper was driving.

Shellie told police the woman got out of the car Tuesday near the park-like area surrounding the home of the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra and asked her to run an errand.

Shellie did and when she returned her sister, who she had been wheeling in a baby stroller, and the woman were gone.

Shellie said the foreign car had a "Save the Philharmonic" sticker on the rear bumper and an American Flag in the right rear side window.

She described the woman as between 40 and 45 years old, heavy - set, with dirty blonde hair. She indicated the woman was well dressed and groomed and wore an orange - flowered sleeveless dress.

Neil J. Welch, special agent in charge of the Buffalo FBI office and several other agents, as well as Buffalo city detectives, remained in the Ontario community overnight and, by invitation, aided Canadian authorities in their investigation.

"We have had several sightings in the area of the type car we are looking for," Welch said. He said the Provincial Police were working on several good leads. He would not expand on the remark.

He said "Jane Doe" kidnaping warrants were issued in the case.

Canadian authorities said a person could be extradited on the charge.
